GARNER DEMANDS DRY REPEAL

Today

Gov. Smith's Tomahawk.
Mr. Lasker's Million.
Mr. Kudner's Airships.
Mr. Higgins Departs.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

TOMORROW FORMER Gov. Alfred E. Smith will be in Chicago, with his tomahawk, scalping knife and war-paint. And "the name that he'll murmur so oft in his sleep" will be that of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

What Gov. Smith plans to do to Gov. Roosevelt is, in the language of the day, "nobody's business."

There will be no empty seats at the Democratic convention, for Gov. Smith's friends, alone, would fill all of them, and by this time have probably bought up the majority of them.

MR. AND MRS. A. D. Lasker, of Chicago, gave a million dollars to the University of Chicago for a foundation for medical research. Doctors, with part of that money, will watch the "steps to death" of twenty, doomed by Bright's disease.

The twenty, who know they must die, have volunteered to let doctors study the "steps" that will lead them to the grave. The twenty volunteers will be well cared for, with the best medical attention while they live, and will die knowing that they have been useful to other human beings.

THE LASKER Foundation was established on condition that the money be used "for research into degenerative diseases of middle age."

Those diseases destroy men whose most useful work is only beginning. On the other hand, they are a great blessing to the average human being. What a pity to sit around indefinitely, when your work is done, only to watch a depression doing its work.

MRS. AMELIA EARHART PUTNAM is home. The streets of downtown New York, where this is written, are littered with ticker tape, thin strips of paper that once told of stocks going up and now tell of stocks going down.

Mrs. Putnam will eat luncheons and dinners, listen to speeches, go to receptions and sign autographs. She knows that her country likes her.

ONCE THE great man was he who could paddle half of a hollow log across a narrow river. Now praise goes to the woman who can fly through the clouds across the Atlantic Ocean.

Once the great hero made a bow and arrow that could shoot one hundred yards. He is replaced by the maker of "Big Bertha" that sent bombs into Paris from seventy-five miles away.

THIS IS the flying age, only in its beginning, but already flying is real, as Mrs. Earhart proves.

Two days ago a Yale man taking luncheon at Port Washington, Long Island, feared to arrive at New Haven late. A grandson of Mrs. E. H. Harriman drove him to New Haven in an airplane, and returned in an hour and a half, in time for dinner.

Arthur Kudner, who knows about advertising, came into New York from a flying trip yesterday, and today flies to Massachusetts, then back to New York, then to Chicago and Detroit. He will attend to business and be back here on Friday.

Last year, between September and December, Mr. Kudner flew 41,000 miles. He uses a Sikorsky two-engine amphibian on short trips. On long journeys he takes a three-engine Ford plane. It gives him room to walk up and down as he dictates.

THE BUSINESS man's two great auxiliaries are the telephone and airplane, neither fully appreciated, yet.

ANOTHER GANGSTER removes the young gang leader, "Vannie" Higgins, from New York's population. Commissioner Mulrooney, New York's police head, announced his policy as follows:

"We shall lock up the gangsters when we can lawfully do so, and we shall kill them when we can lawfully do so."

Meanwhile, gangsters are killing each other occasionally.

THIS IS part of Vannie Higgins' enlightening record:

Arrested for assault in 1915; put on probation for one year, with nothing to interfere with his activities. Arrested for felonious assault in 1916, again put on probation. Arrested for assault and robbery in 1926, discharged. Arrested for possessing a revolver in 1928, discharged. Arrested on a homicide charge in 1928, discharged. Arrested again two months later in 1928, for felonious assault, discharged.

That is about half of his record. He always "beat the law" except once when fined $175 for driving an automobile while drunk.

This country must apparently rely on the gangsters to exterminate each other.

EUROPE HAS decided not to pay their American war debts, offering "good moral reasons" for the welching. Our European friends also propose "a war on the United States tariff." The conference at Lausanne plans united action to compel us to reduce tariff rates.

Germany develops an interesting idea in the threat to "declare a moratorium" on gigantic private debts owed in the United States, unless this country will agree to cancel all war debts.

European gratitude for the help in the war is new, in the history of gratitude.

PROHIBITION UNSOUND, SPEAKER SAYS

Urges Government Economy, Fight on Communism and Collection of Debts

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—John N. Garner, speaker of the House and one-time Texas cowboy, swung his political lariat toward the Democratic presidential nomination today with a statement urging repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In a formal statement handed to newspapermen upon his return to the Capitol after an illness of several days, the Speaker said he had voted against the Eighteenth Amendment and added:

"I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed."

URGES ECONOMY

He advocated economy in governmental expenses; warned of an "increasing tendency toward Communism;" declared against cancellation of foreign debts, and advocated "enough work to keep people from starving."

Discussing the Democratic presidential nomination, he said California and Texas Democrats are sending delegations to the Chicago convention "instructed to vote for my nomination for the presidency." He added:

"This has been done without my solicitation. I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my coun-

SEE DEMOCRAT RULE FIGHT

Warren Van Dyke, Democratic state chairman, predicted in Pittsburgh today that if it is necessary to abrogate the two-thirds rule to nominate Gov. Roosevelt, the Roosevelt forces will make such a fight at the Democratic convention next week. He added:

"After all, there's no reason why we should need a two-thirds majority of the delegates to nominate our candidate, when the Republicans need only a bare majority."

Mr. Van Dyke came to Pittsburgh from Harrisburg to confer with Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader in Pittsburgh. Tonight they leave for the convention in Chicago.

On only one point do they disagree. Both chorus that Roosevelt will receive more than 60 of Pennsylvania's 76 votes, but Guffey predicts that Roosevelt will be nominated on the first ballot. Conservative Mr. Van Dyke predicts:

"A couple of ballots."

U. S. Flier Killed By Bomb Explosion

MANILO, P. I., June 21.—(INS.)—Lieut. Elwell A. Sanborn, United States Army air pilot, was killed today when a bomb he was preparing to release from his airplane exploded prematurely, setting fire to the plane, which crashed from an altitude of 1,500 feet over Fort Stotsenburg. Officials at once launched an investigation.

Hibben Gets Degree, Quits at Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., June 21.—(AP.)—John Grier Hibben today received the degree of doctor of letters and then retired as president of Princeton University, which institution he had headed for the last 20 years. It was the fiftieth anniversary of Hibben's graduation from Princeton.

Engine Blast Kills 2, 84 Passengers Periled

Allison Park Area Rocked by Explosion

Two veteran trainmen were killed and the lives of 84 passengers endangered when the engine of the westbound Capitol Limited, of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was blown apart at Allison Park early today. Several passengers were hurled from their berths.

The body of O. P. Smith, the engineer, of Lodi, O., was found in Pine Creek, about 50 feet from the coal tender, and that of H. E. Scott, of Akron, O., the fireman, was hurled onto the eastbound track. A gold watch case evidently belonging to the dead fireman, was found near his body. The works were missing.

The terrific blast rocked the district and was heard in a radius of more than five miles.

The boiler of the mountain-type passenger locomotive hurtled through the air against the rocky hillside and fell on the eastbound track about 250 feet from the coal tender.

DEBRIS HURLED

The chassis, its wheel intact, raced down the tracks for almost 600 feet. The sand dome, cab and other heavy pieces of metal shot into the air and showered nearby fields. Some of the debris shot

Ambridge Man Slain Over Rent

AMBRIDGE, Pa., June 21.—In a quarrel over rent, police say, Steve Cukovich, a shoemaker, was shot and killed early today in his shop, 1610 Duss avenue.

Emite Colaizzi, a barber, same address and owner of the place, was arrested charged with the shooting.

SHARKEY TOPS MAX IN WEIGHT

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—Jack Sharkey weighed in at 205 pounds today for his heavyweight fight with Max Schmeling in Madison Square Garden's open-air bowl tonight, 17 pounds more than the German champion, who tipped the scales at 188.

The weights were a surprise to both men, some three pounds over what Sharkey expected to weigh and two pounds under what Schmeling thought he would do.

Commissioner William Muldoon, who did the weighing, was probably responsible for some of the difference, as he hustled the men on and off the scales and did not give the bar on the scales an opportunity to come to rest in dead center.

Sharkey appeared to be in the best of condition, calm and smiling, while Schmeling appeared drawn and a trifle pale. The champion was the more nervous of the two.

Schmeling remains a 6-5 favorite in the betting. The weather has cleared, and it is believed the danger of showers during the night has passed. A crowd of 50,000 is expected to witness the battle in Long Island City.

JURY ACTION LOOMS IN PROBE

Park Acts Swiftly, Seizing Records; Highway Division Chief Gives Payroll Data

A grand jury investigation of the county government appeared certain today after District Attorney Andrew T. Park had mysteriously seized certain records, the contents of which he kept secret.

LINKS PRIVATE WORK

A grand jury investigation would be expected to deal with only one phase of the disclosures already made. These disclosures have had to do with private work for county officials at the county's expense, overpayment of employes, political assessments of employes—most of the alleged abuses taking place while the late Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock formed the majority of the Board of County Commissioners, of which Col. C. C. McGovern was the minority.

While Park was moving swiftly today, Daniel D. Houlahen, superintendent of the County's No. 3 Road Division, suddenly appeared before the probers with payroll records he had been asked for. Houlahen had been sought since Friday, when he obtained the records from Division Clerk Kenneth C. Wickline—and his appearance today stayed action on three informations which had been obtained against him. These charged larceny, fraudulent conversion and withholding public records.

GET ALL RECORDS

Houlahen's examination was that, having started his vacation Friday, he took the payroll records to his home for safe keeping.

Houlahen gave the investigators 1931 payroll sheets and appointment letters. When, at request of Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, he also produced 1930 records, the auditors said he had turned over all records needed.

Mrs. Hausner Flies To Meet Husband

NEWARK, N. J., June 21.—(AP.)—Mrs. Martha Hausner left by airplane today for Miami, Fla., to meet her husband, Stanley Hausner, who was rescued from the Atlantic Ocean after an unsuccessful attempt to fly to Poland.

Hausner is aboard the steamer Circe Shell, bound for New Orleans. It is planned to have a seaplane meet the ship off the Florida coast and take Hausner to Miami.

Calles' Wife Suffers Tumor of Brain

A conference of specialists was scheduled today to decide whether an operation is feasible. The senora's physician agreed that her condition was "very serious."

Arbuckle and Actress Wed In Erie at 3 A. M.

ERIE, Pa., June 21.—Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, funny man of the films a decade ago, and Miss Addie Oakly Dukes McPhail, 26, his leading lady in a vaudeville sketch, were married here at 3 a. m. today. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Walter Goodwin, of Wesleyville, Erie suburb.

Arbuckle and his bride, playing this week at the Palace Theater, Cleveland, shortly after midnight made arrangements by telephone for the ceremony. Accompanied by Jack Sutta, another member of the cast, they sped here by automobile.

Ben F. Swartz, County Recorder, was routed from his bed and went to the courthouse to issue the license.

Arbuckle had been refused a license in Cleveland, because he and his bride did not have a legal residence in the state. Last week at Albany, N. Y., Mayor Thatcher had refused to perform the ceremony. The bride said her home was in White Plains, N. Y.

Legislature Set to Relieve Needy

House and Senate Must Join in Relief to Save Jobless From Starving

CONGRESS will be guilty of "desertion in the face of the enemy" if it adjourns the present session without providing effective relief for unemployment.

Under the able leadership of Speaker Garner, the Democrats of the House have passed an unemployment relief measure that is a step in the right direction.

Then the best features of both these remedial measures should be adopted in conference, and an unemployment relief program sent to the President for approval without any more dilly-dallying.

If Mr. Hoover persists in his refusal to permit the federal government to go to the rescue of the unemployed and vetoes such a bill, Congress should over-ride his veto and remain in session until Mr. Hoover is forced to carry out the will of Congress in this vital business.

ALREADY Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, than whom the Hoover administration has had no more steadfast supporter, has seen the handwriting on the wall.

Disassociating himself from the opposition of the administration to any assistance for the unemployed, Senator Reed declares for the Wagner bill because, he says:

"It will put millions of men to work, and the government will be getting something out of it instead of dumping the money down a rat hole in the form of charity."

Our 8,000,000 unemployed ought not to be condemned any longer to standing around ratholes with only charity between themselves and their families and the common enemy of hunger and starvation.

Congressman Rainey, of Illinois, acting Speaker and majority floor leader of the Democratic House, sees the handwriting on the wall when he warns the Congress against adjourning without providing relief for the unemployed.

"We will be called back in special session within 30 days," predicts Mr. Rainey, if some such relief measure as the Garner bill or the Wagner bill is not enacted into law.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, sees the handwriting on the wall when, in an eloquent appeal to the Senate not to turn a deaf ear to the hungry millions, he warns both houses of congress and the President:

"Our country's life is in more danger today than it was either before or during the great World War.

"A great crisis confronts us now, and the crux of it all is this:

"Let men who want to work have work, so that they can buy the food that the farmer produces; so that the men who are selling clothing and food will be able to hire clerks and pay them wages; so that the factories that will make the tools and the other machinery necessary to carry on a great unemployment campaign will all have their wheels started; and business will commence again, and in its thousands and thousands of ramifications, employment and prosperity will come up everywhere."

This would be the inevitable result of a $5,000,000,000 prosperity loan, which the Hearst newspapers have been advocating for the last 12 months.

IF CONGRESS is too timid to float a loan of that size now, the least the Congress can do is to authorize the program of public works carried in the Garner and Wagner bills, and repeal every statute that stands in the way of starting this con-

GOVERNOR, LEADERS AGREE

Program Mapped, Bills Drawn for Second Extra Session; Loans Planned

HARRISBURG, June 21.—(AP.)—The special legislative session for which welfare workers have been clamoring will convene Monday night.

Losing no time, Gov. Gifford Pinchot announced he would issue the call as he emergeed last night from a seven-hour conference with leaders of the regular Republicans at which an agreement was reached on 14 proposed measures.

Heading the list of these was one to permit political subdivisions to float emergency loans against uncollected taxes, the proceeds to be used for unemployment relief and payrolls.

INSTALLMENT TAXES

Two other proposed extensions of the subdivisions' powers would authorize them to take tax payments on monthly installments and strengthen their power to collect delinquent taxes.

The program included curtailments in appropriations previously made for state buildings, the savings to go principally toward restoring the non-preferred appropriations for charities and institutions which were hit by the Tal-

SENATE SNAGS RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Hopes for the much-sought final adjournment by Saturday sank a little today in the face of slow progress being made in the Senate on unemployment relief.

Numerous differences of opinion over the Wagner Democratic $2,000,000,000 bill and its various provisions were regarded as making unlikely its passage by tonight, although this objective was sought by the leaders.

Meanwhile Mayor Anto Cermak told the House Banking Committee today that unless federal relief is forthcoming "I am unable to say what will happen in Chicago after August 1."

Cermak appeared in behalf of an amendment to the Wagner relief bill which would permit loans to municipalities for meeting their expenses.

Chicago Gets Plague Warning Over Strike

CHICAGO, June 21.—(AP.)—Housewives received a plague warning today from city health authorities as 2,400 street cleaners and garbage collectors quit work in protest against two payless months.

City officials put their hope for relief in the ability of Mayor Anton Cermak's committee of citizens to get an $81,000,000 loan from the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation in Washington.

The Problem

AN average of 164 new relief cases are brought to the attention of the Family Welfare Association here each day.

The Remedy

A $5,000,000,000 bond issue by the United States to build great public works, employ several million men, start the nation back to prosperity.

SENATOR SEEKS REPUDIATION OF PLANK

President Likely to Keep Mum Until Delivery of Acceptance Address

By WM. S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—A rigid silence was maintained at the White House early today in the wake of the declaration of Senator Borah (Rep.), of Idaho, that he will not support President Hoover on the Chicago platform.

Although administration leaders hastened to defend the prohibition plank in the platform, which Borah so vigorously denounced, there was little expectation of a statement from President Hoover in reply to Borah.

The veiled suggestion of Borah that President Hoover could, like himself, repudiate the Chicago platform, aroused speculation in administration circles. But if President Hoover should take such a radical step in an effort to obtain party harmony, it is believed he would await his formal acceptance speech.

Those who sensed the possibility of Mr. Hoover taking this step pointed out that he might wait until August, when changed economic conditions might warrant him in going beyond the platform in stating his position both on prohibition and on economic issues.

ASSAILS PLATFORM

Senator Borah, in his dramatic Senate speech, assailed the Republican platform on economic issues as vigorously as he attacked the prohibition plank.

James R. Garfield, chairman of the resolutions committee of the Republican National Convention, who served as President Hoover's "contact man" and who was credited with drafting the compromise plank, declared today Borah "misrepresented and distorted" it. He said:

"This is just what I expected of the Senator. I cannot agree with his interpretation of the plank. It certainly is not tantamount to repeal if by repeal one means the return of the liquor question to the states.

"The plank pledges the party to submit a new amendment to take the place of the Eighteenth Amendment. In this amendment, control over the liquor traffic would remain in Congress to the end that dry states would be protected."

BORAH CHALLENGED

Last night two cabinet officers challenged Borah's assertion that they favored repeal. Treasury Secretary Mills declared:

"The Senator has evidently misunderstood my position. While I have not been an advocate of the Eighteenth Amendment, I have not believed that mere repeal is the solution. On the contrary, I have become more and more convinced that the true remedy is to be found in modifying the Eighteenth Amendment so as to prevent a return of the conditions which existed prior to the Eighteenth Amendment, and at the same time stamp out the undeniable evils that exist today."

Postmaster General Brown declared Senator Borah "was mistaken."

The break between President Hoover and Borah, which was disclosed in dramatic fashion by the Idaho Senator in a speech in the Senate, was declared by Borah's friends to be irreparable.

REVOLT FORECAST

The bolt not only forecast a split in the ranks of the extreme drys, but was regarded as the beginning of a possible revolt by the "insurgent bloc" of the Senate because of the economic stand of the party.

Borah indicated plainly he does not expect a third party to emerge from the present situation, but just as emphatically evidenced a determination to make himself heard during the campaign.

Senator George W. Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska, who bolted Mr. Hoover in 1928, emphatically approved Borah's declarations. He said:

"I will not be the only renegade this year."

He made it plain that he will not support Mr. Hoover. Whether he supports the Democratic candidate, he said, depends upon whether the party names "another Hoover." He classed as "another Hoover" Owen D. Young, Newton D. Baker and Gov. Albert Ritchie, of Maryland.

NON-PARTISAN DRY AID SOUGHT

COLUMBUS, O., June 21.—(AP.)—A call for non-partisan support of dry candidates in the November election will be issued by the Anti-Saloon League after the Democratic national convention next week, Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the league, said here last night.

Addressing the forty-ninth annual convention of the Women's General Missionary Society of the United Presbyterian Church in North America, McBride termed the forthcoming election one of the most vital events in the league's fight for prohibition.

McBride withheld comment on the submission plank adopted by the recent Republican convention. He said:

"It is fair to withhold opinion until after the Democratic convention."

Declaring that prohibition is not a political partisan issue and that the Democrats and Republicans will vote according to their conscience, McBride said:

"The next general election is the most important thing that can happen now, for it will decide what the drys will be able to do in the next 25 years. It will be fought out in congressional districts."

HOOVER GREETS AMELIA

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—President Hoover today greeted Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam and congratulated her on her solo flight over the Atlantic.

She was ushered into his office, where they chatted together, and then went to pose for photographers on the lawn behind the executive offices. Mrs. Hoover was a member of the group.

In a pre-presentation of the special gold medal of the National Geographic Society, which President Hoover will formally give to Mrs. Putnam tonight, President Hoover said:

"It gives me a very great deal of pleasure to present you with this rarely conferred medal. The whole American people is proud of you and your performance."

Mrs. Putnam said:

"I do thank you sincerely. But I fear my exploit was not worth such a great honor."

Mrs. Putnam flew here today from New York with her husband and step-son, David.

Dry Agents Raid Club on North Side

A North Side club on the second and third floors of 801 East Ohio street was raided by prohibition agents, who today reported seizing 414 pints of beer, whisky, moonshine and gin. A raid at 513 Emlin street yielded 2,204 bottles of beer, 101 half pints and six gallons of whisky. Raids were also made at Kirkpatrick and Tomahawk streets, 213 First avenue and 703 James street.

Conferees Locked Over Army Slash

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Congressional conferees on the Army appropriation bill broke up in a deadlock today over the House provision cutting off 2,000 officers.

Chairman Reed, of the Senate conferees, announced the "deadlock' and said the conference had broken up without fixing a time for another meeting.

CHLORINE GAS LEAK FELLS 85

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., June 21.—(AP.)—Wartime scenes were recalled here today when chlorine gas escaping from a tank car on a siding just over the New York City line was blown over this city and felled 85 men and women.

Nine persons were taken to Mount Vernon Hospital where it was said two of them had been affected seriously in the lungs by the choking and corrosive fumes.

The victims were workers in industrial plants and warehouses on the southern edge of the city. As the gas swept over the city men and women staggered out of factory buildings coughing and choking.

Because of the heavy atmosphere the gas hung low over houses and its effect seemed to be more noticeable outside than in. Men and women dropped to the grounds by dozens.

Hundreds of persons in homes were reported to have been made ill, but made no report to police.

Rail Agent Accused Of Murdering Vet

MARION, N. C., June 21.—(AP.)—W. B. Banks, of Asheville, special agent for the Southern Railway, was held under $10,000 bond last night, charged with murder in the death of Louis Chiapetta, Texas bonus marcher, who died today from pistol wounds sustained Friday night as he slept in a box car here.

Chiapetta, with seven other veterans en route home from Washington, was shot in the abdomen, and his companions named Banks as his assailant.

GARNER'S STAND IMPRESSES DEMOCRATS

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 21.—Speaker John N. Garner's declaration today for straight-out repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment created a profound stir among the delegates and leaders assembling for the Democratic national convention.

His action virtually assures that the convention next week will adopt a prohibition plank that will pledge the party and its nominees to submit the question of repeal to the people.

GOOD PLATFORM

The brevity and the plainness of his statement, with no pussyfooting, appealed to the assembling delegates, and it was suggested:

"That's a good platform plank in itself."

Every major candidate for the Democratic nomination is now on the repeal side—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and Newton D. Baker.

That the Garner statement has improved the Speaker's chances for the presidential nomination was readily conceded on all sides—always provided that the convention turns away from the one who now has most of the delegates, Gov. Roosevelt.

If, as many here expect, the convention comes down to the traditional Democratic deadlock, Garner will figure. Next to Roosevelt and Smith, the Texan has more delegates than any other candidate.

Al Smith reaches Chicago tomorrow. He comes, according to his friends, with his jaw set and prepared to go to almost any lengths to keep the nomination from going to Roosevelt. If Smith fails in his objective, then it is whispered in knowing quarters that he will take his place on the sidelines along with Senator Borah, whose bolt from President Hoover cheered Democratic delegates here today.

Meanwhile, proclaiming the need for prohibition reform, John J. Raskob arrived today to marshal the forces of Smith.

RASKOB VIEW

While disclaiming knowledge of what the party's plank on prohibition would contain, the Democratic national chairman said:

"The plank will be one adopted by the entire party as represented by the delegates in convention. No group, no clique, no coterie or men will write the plank nor dictate what stand democracy shall take on this question."

He expressed confidence that next week the Democratic convention would retain the two-thirds rule, abrogation of which is one possibility to which the forces backing Roosevelt are looking to gain the New York Governor's nomination.

Further, the chairman asserted he had "no doubt" but what the convention will select Jouett Shouse as permanent chairman and said to elect anyone else would be "an act of bad faith" and a gesture of disrespect toward the national committee and the sub-committee on arrangements.

Roosevelt, Palmer Confer Over Issues

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 21.—(AP.)—During a two-hour conference with A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, yesterday, Gov. Roosevelt sat in the cabin of a yacht and wrote in long hand his views on many of the issues with which the Democratic national convention will have to deal next week.

The Pennsylvanian and the Governor were associates in war days, Mr. Roosevelt serving as assistant secretary of the Navy while Palmer was attorney general.

VETS TO LEAVE TOMORROW

Pittsburgh's reinforcements to the Bonus Expeditionary Forces "holding the fort" in Washington, plan to leave here tomorrow morning, it was announced following a rally in East Park.

Between 300 and 500 ex-service men have signified willingness to join the bonus forces, it was announced by Harry Funk and Joseph N. Finney, chairman.

A committee was organized to secure transportation for the trip and today started out on a borrowing campaign to obtain trucks and food. The committee includes Louis Bhambircherne, J. Symand, James L. Jones, J. M. Duffy and Lawrence Palmer. All are veterans with overseas service.

Vets' Insurance Extension Passed

WASHINGTON, June 21—(AP.)—A House bill providing for renewal of five-year government insurance policies for veterans for an additional five-year period without medical examination was passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the White House.

Federal Jobholders Warned on Politics

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Federal employes were warned by the Civil Service Commission today to obey its rules not to take an active part in political campaigns or face the possibility of losing their jobs.

The commission, aroused by political activities of groups of federal employes, called to the attention of all of them long standing rules prohibiting participation in politics.

BOY TO TELL OF KILLING

Joseph Yuhasz, 12, of 428 Flowers avenue, Hazelwood, was to tell homicide detectives today the story of the fatal shooting of his 16-months-old brother, Alex, while they were at play in their home late yesterday.

Last night Joseph told detectives he had taken the gun away from his brother when the latter found it standing behind the kitchen door. He added:

"I didn't know father left it loaded. He used it to scare birds away from the garden."

The shooting occurred while the parents of the children, Joseph and Elizabeth Yuhasz, were at work in their garden. Running to the house when he heard the shot, the father carried the wounded child to a nearby physician's office, where he died.

MAINE REMAINS IN DRY RANKS

PORTLAND, Me., June 21.—(INS.)—Rock-ribbed Maine, "dry" for more than half a century, remained in the prohibition ranks and expected Democratic strength failed to materialize in the primaries yesterday.

Congressman Carroll Beedy, ardent Republican dry, held a commanding lead over his anti-dry rival, Edward F. Chase.

In the G. O. P. gubernatrial contest State Senate President Burleigh Martin was leading with more than 23,000 votes. This was contrasted by the small vote in the Democratic gubernatorial primary. There Mayor Harold Duboard, of Waterville, had 4,860 votes as against 4,734 for Paul C. Thurston, of Bethel, and 4,613 for ex-Mayor Louis Brann, of Lewiston.

try and my party to the limit of my capacity."

GARNER'S STATEMENT

His statement follows in full:

"Many of my friends, not only those residing in my own district and state, but throughout the country, have asked me repeatedly to express myself on various public questions.

"I have maintained the position I assumed when I was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives, that I would not indulge in the discussion of controversial issues not immediately under consideration by the House.

"Moreover, during the 30 years I have been a member of Congress, practically every principle involved in the problems of the nation today have been before the House, and my views thereon are a matter of record.

"This country has erected tariff barriers that are practically excluding the products of foreign nations. This makes it economically impossible for these nations to buy from us the products of our farms and our factories, thereby aggravating our industrial depression.

"All relief measures so far have been purely temporary and do not go to the root of the trouble. No sound-thinking citizen can favor the dole; neither can the government sit idly by and see its people starve when they are willing to work.

MUST PROVIDE WORK

"Enough work must be provided to keep the people from starving and we shall be fortunate, indeed, if this irreducible cost minimum does not greatly exceed the amount provided in the relief measures which I sponsored.

"Before genuine and permanent relief can be accomplished, the finances of the basic industries of this nation must be placed on a saner basis, thereby removing the specter of receiverships and foreclosures and restoring their buying power and ability to employ labor.

"International trade must be re-established by the restoration of international confidence and credits. Honesty among nations is as essential a virtue as honesty among individuals.

"An individual who borrows and makes no honest effort to pay is dishonest; the same applies to a nation.

"If foreign debts should be cancelled the credit of the nations involved would be destroyed and they cannot borrow again.

"The government of the United States owes it to its citizens to collect from the debtor nations to the extent of their ability to pay and there should be no flim-flam accepted as to that ability to pay.

AGAINST DRY LAW

"When the prohibition amendment was proposed I, as a member of Congress, voted against it. I have never believed it sound or workable and it should be repealed.

"The cost of government—city, county, state and national—can and should be reduced not less than one-third.

"The principal obligation of a government, established in accordance with the American principles and traditions, is to protect all of its people in the free enjoyment of the fruits of their labor and the pursuit of happiness.

"The constantly increasing tendency toward Socialism and Communism is the gravest possible menace. The government should use every means within its power to prevent their further spread and they should receive no encouragement from any American citizen, high or low.

"The Democrats of California and of my native state, Texas, are sending delegations to the national convention in Chicago instructed to vote for my nomination for the presidency.

"This has been done without my solicitation. I appreciate the support of my friends and am willing to serve my country and my party to the limit of my capacity."

Bridegroom's Death By Fumes Probed

CUMBERLAND, Md., June 21.—Police today are investigating the death of Jesse A. Arnold, 32, in a garage at Westernport, thought due to carbon monoxide poisoning. Arnold, on May 16, was married to Mary Lough. Last night, police said, Arnold talked to his wife and friends regarding funeral services and the disposal of his body. He had frequently talked of suicide, police said, since the death of his former sweetheart, Mary Lowman, of Keyser, W. Va., killed while driving his auto a year ago.

Indiana Democrats Vote Repeal Plank

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 21.—(AP.)—Democrats of Indiana at their state convention today approved a platform containing a "temperance" plank, which recommends that Congress "immediately propose the necessary amendment to the federal Constitution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment."

Norris, Ardent Dry, Sees Need of Law Change

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(Universal.)—"If prohibition is not satisfactory—and it is not—I believe the United States must try some modified or compromise plan to deal with the liquor question."

Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, one of the oldest dry stalwarts of the Senate, made this assertion today, while declaring himself not yet ready to advocate resubmission of the Eighteenth Amendment. Norris said he has himself been considering the question of a change in prohibition for some time, continuing:

"I do not believe in resubmission for outright repeal, without any substitute, because that means the return of the saloon, and the saloon must never return.

"I have long been interested in proposals for beer and light wines, and it may be that some such modification will answer the question. We have never had a chance to try that, you know. It might solve the problem."

Norris, heretofore generally considered an irreconcilable dry, declared he was not yet ready to advocate resubmission "because we are going to do nothing right away and any discussion at this immediate moment is a mere academic question." He added, however:

"There is a possibility that the plan of Gov. Smith, for state dispensaries to sell liquor, with strict provisions that none shall be consumed on the premises, might be satisfactory.

"There must, however, be some very definite provision to prevent the return of the saloon before I am willing to back any resubmission."

upward, more than 120 feet to the crest of the hillside. The cab roof, blown several hundred feet, tore down telephone and telegraph wires and demolished a crane on which mail is suspended.

PASSENGERS SAFE

Eighty-four passengers bound from New York and Washington to Chicago, and the train crew, were uninjured, according to railroad officials. They escaped injury because the blast sent the boiler and other tons of twisted metal forward. The coal tender and the 10 cars, including a club and mail car, were not derailed. The passengers were asleep and some, railroad officials said, were hurled from their berths. Air-brakes stopped the train, railroad officials reported.

The crack train's speed was estimated at about 30 miles as it entered Allison Park, not far from the Butler Plank road. The engineer had blown his whistle at a bridge 200 feet from the station just before the engine blew up.

One of the residents told J. W. Schad, division master mechanic of the railroad, who, with W. F. Booth, assistant suerintendent of the Pittsburgh division, began an immediate investigation, that he first heard a minor explosion and then a major one.

HOBOES ESCAPE

Two hoboes, riding the coal tender, escaped death when the cab of the engine shot into the air. They leaped from the train and fled to the top of the hillside, neighbors said.

Railroad officials, after a preliminary examination with James Davidson, coroner's chief clerk, said the cause of the blast had not been determined. They intimated, however, that other engine explosions, which are a rarity, were due to a low water pressure.

Among the passengers were believed attaches of the Democratic party moving from Washington to Chicago for the national convention.

Davidson, acting coroner, announced that federal authorities and railroad representatives would examine the parts of the wrecked engine at the Glenwood shops today to determine, if possible, the cause. The inquest probably will be held late today.

One railroad official estimated the damage to the engine at $75,000.

C. H. Thompson, of Mt. Lebanon, conductor on the train, a man with 40 years of railroad service, reported there was no disorder among the sleeping passengers.

Fay Lindsay, 14, of Allison Park, said:

"The explosion sounded like a hundred storms all in one. Nobody at home knew what happened until we looked out the window and saw people running to the railroad tracks."

The wrecked train was rerouted after an hour's delay via the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad via New Castle Junction. Traffic was resumed several hours later.

Vatican Power Plant Approved by Pope

VATICAN CITY, June 21.—(AP.)—The Pope today approved construction of a new power station to make the Papal State self-sufficient so far as electricity is concerned.

The plant will be housed in a new building at the northern end of Vatican City, originally intended for employes' quarters.

Lang Opposes Band Stands at City Cost

Erection of band stands at the city's expense, long a practice enjoyed by politicians to garner votes, was frowned on today by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang.

In a letter to Council, Lang urged that no band stands be erected except for military or civic receptions, unless authorized by a vote of Council.

Man Hangs Himself With Bathrobe Cord

Claude B. Williams, 55, an employe of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, was discovered by his brother early today hanging by the cord of his bathrobe in a Franklin avenue rooming house in Aliquippa, according to a police report. He was pronounced dead by Dr. Henry Thel.

30 Days Made 60 For Accusing Police

William J. Harris, of Cleveland, arrested accused of begging in the Grant Building, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, in Central Police Court. But when Harris accused detectives of keeping his last 50 cents after buying cigarets for him, Magistrate Leo Rothenberg doubled the sentence to 60 days.

Hutton Romantic, Drinks, Nurse Says in Suit For $200,000 Balm

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(AP.)—Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, attractive 30-year-old nurse who seeks $200,000 from David Hutton for alleged breach of promise, testified that the husband of Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, was extremely affectionate and also drank whisky. Miss St. Pierre testified yesterday:

"When he first met me at a dinner party, he asked the hostess, 'where did you keep this gorgeous creature all the time?"

"He kept putting his hand over mine whenever I passed the bread, kept calling me a 'lovely girl, and he said, 'I'm not going to get very far from you now after I've found you!'"

After the dinner party, Miss St. Pierre said, she, Hutton and another couple went to her home where they had a few drinks. The nurse testified:

"When he saw my little bungalow he said, 'I'll move in any time you say.'"

Miss St. Pierre was to continue her story of her alleged betrayal under promise of marriage when court sessions were resumed today.

While the nurse testified, Hutton, a choir singer at Angelus Temple, of which his wife is the pastor, muttered:

"Bunk! All Bunk!"

Later he said:

"I'm not a bit worried about this trial. I'm worried about my poor little wife, lying out there in a sanitarium. She's all that matters."

Mrs. Hutton is suffering from an illness contracted on a recent tour of Central America.

Gas Company Fights Conservatory Change

The city is making a mistake in building a coal-operated boiler plant at the Schenley Park Conservatory to replace the gas-operated system, the Peoples Natural Gas Company said today in a protest to Council.

The Bureau of Parks has asked Council to permit erection of a coal-operated plant on grounds of increased economy. The gas company declared that with certain changes in burners the gas operation would be the more economical and said installation of an automatic gas feeder would eliminate all labor. Council took the communication under advisement.

COUNTY WIELDS AX ON 87

Eighty-seven positions in the Department of Property and Supplies were sliced from the county payroll today by the County Commissioners. The cut was voted by the commissioners upon the recommendation of Ray Sprigle, director of the department.

The elimination, together with a number of downawrd adjustments in salaries, will have the county $191,000 annually, it was reported. The names of those to be dropped will be announced next Tuesday, the day before the action becomes effective.

HURT IN LEAP FROM FLAMES

Waking to find his house in flames, Manus Scott, 50, of 1465 Hillsdale avenue, Dormont, broke a second floor window with his hands and leaped to a porch, today, suffering cuts and probable internal injuries.

Scott had driven all night from Asbury Park, N. J., where he had taken his wife and three children on their vacation, and was sleeping late. After his leap he was given first aid by J. A. Zewe, Jr., a medical student at Georgetown University, who lives across the street.

Scott was treated by a nearby physician and was to be removed to a hospital.

Chief Lou Matter, of the Dormont Fire Department, placed the damage at $4,000. Origin of the fire was undetermined. Scott is in the wholesale bakery supply business.

Mayview to Shelter 500 Homeless Men

Five hundred additional homeless men will be cared for during the summer at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the department of welfare, said today.

The men are being cared for at present at the Helping Hand Association's haven on Water street. A $5,000 appropriation from Council to assist in caring for the unfortunates has been asked by Mrs. Rauh.

struction work as swiftly as plans can be perfected and contracts let.

Having refused the appeal of our unemployed defenders with the colors in the great war for the payment of the balance due them on their adjusted service compensation certificates, the Senate owes it to them and to the millions of other jobless Americans to provide them with the employment for which they hunger and without which many of them will soon starve.

Bledsoe Calls Bell 'Liar;' Denies Slaying Partner In Fayette Still

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 21.—Branding Tony Bell, his accuser, as a "liar" and contradicting testimony of his former sweetheart, Mrs. Elsie Ritenour, Robert C. Bledsoe declared that Constable John F. Donohoe, for whose murder Bledsoe is now on trial, was his friend and partner in the Fayette County liquor racket.

Bledsoe from the witness stand this morning, referring to Donohoe said:

"He had more money in the slaughterhouse still than I had."

As he went through examination by his attorney Charles L. Davidson, he replied in no uncertain tones:

"Tony Bell lies. All he has told about the murder is a lie. I never had any part in either the planning, plotting or the killing."

Bledsoe said he and Donohoe were friends, while he and Bell were enemies.

CONTRADICTS WOMAN

In brief, terse sentences, Bledsoe denied the story previously related by Elsie Ritenour, of their movements on the night of July 30, when the murder occurred.

On the foundation constructed by his divorced wife, her daughter, Ruth, and son, Robert, Bledsoe is attempting to build a sure defense.

Cross-examination will be turned on the defendant by District Attorney Wade K. Newell in an effort to "break" him. Statements made on previous occasions will be flaunted in the face of the former county detective. He will be asked to explain them. He will be asked to reconcile any discrepancies.

STORIES CONFLICT

Another turn came in the case when Tony Bell's confession of the Donohoe slaying, made on successive days differed in material points. In the statement made to Police Commissioner Austin J. Roche, Tony said that Donohoe's body was riddled with bullets shortly after midnight. He declared emphatically in his testimony last week that the shooting occurred after 1 o'clock.

Preliminary witnesses leading up to the climax of Bledsoe's own story were heard as court opened this morning. Night Chief Charley Malik and Patrolman James Jones say they saw Bell enter a local restaurant at 1:15. Bell claims he still was near the death scene at that time.

According to one of Bell's stories, Donohoe was shot at 1:30. Several witnesses, including Constable George Zemo, say they saw Donohoe alive at that hour—in Republic, five miles from the scene of the killing, in an automobile with a man not yet identified.

Bell is to be recalled to the witness stand in rebuttal as also is Glenn Allum and Ted Dawson.

CAPITAL 'PLOT' SEEN AS HOAX

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(AP.)—Washington police and federal authorities were convinced today they had been hoaxed by an irresponsible person who reported that an automobile load of explosives was being brought to the capital, possibly to blow up the White House.

Though placing no credence in the source of the report, officers made an all-night search of cars answering the description, but without result.

Police say they know the identity of the hoaxer. What action, if any, will be taken, however, was not made public.

Man Halting Train Pays Fine of $25

John Reed, 543 Princeton boulevard, Wilkinsburg, who stopped a train with his automobile yesterday, was fined $25 in Traffic Court today on a charge of reckless driving. Reed's sister-in-law, Violet Davis, 31, of 7114 Kedron street, and John Marshall, 36, Negro hitch-hiker, forfeited $5 for non-appearance in court.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over the upper Mississippi Valley yesterday morning is now north of the lakes, over Eastern Ontario and a trough formation extends southward over the Mississippi Valley states to Texas. High pressure overlies the southeastern states and the plains states. Light showers were quite general over the country between the Appalachian Mountains and the plains states, and conditions are still favorable for showers over most of that section. Temperature changes were slight.

River Conditions.

The rivers are about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 7.0 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 11.4; Pittsburgh, 10.2; Dam No. 4, 8.8; Dam No. 6, 7.6; Dam No. 10, 8.3, and Dam No. 12, 7.0. The dams are up. Light showers occurred over most of the district during yesterday and last night.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT CHURCH FETE

DUBLIN, June 21.—(INS.)—High prelates of the Roman Catholic Church, in Dublin for the thirty-first international Eucharistic Congress, relegated themselves to the background today as communion services for children were held throughout the country.

The occasion was the anniversary of St. Aloysius, the patron saint of children. In deference to the ceremony, no functions were scheduled for delegates to the Congress until this afternoon.

Meanwhile, prelates, priests and pilgrims continued to pour into Dublin from all quarters of the globe. The liner Doric arrived just in time yesterday to enable Dr. Karl Aller, bishop of Toledo, and Mgr. F. A. Schrembs, bishop of Cleveland, to participate in the welcome to Cardinal Lauri, papal legate, at the pro-cathedral.

GRAVE YIELDS HOLDUP CLUES

A revolver half buried in a grave in Minersville Cemetery and footprints from the cemetery to Herron Hill Junior High School today convinced city detectives they had in custody two suspects in the shooting and attempted holdup of Sebastian Kaiser, 43, baker.

Into the footprints, Detective Ted Feldman this afternoon fitted the shoes of the suspects, he said. The prisoners, Thomas Hynes, 19, of Oakland avenue, and Salvatore DiFrancsacs, 19, of Atwood street, were held for investigation. They denied the charge.

Kaiser and his brother, John, 19, were in the bakery at 638 Herron avenue, when the gunmen entered. The brothers fought them off with a chair and knife. In the scuffle Kaiser was shot in the thigh.

Quarrel With Wife Traps Fugitive

Perry O'Keefe, 35, today went back to the workhouse, from which he escaped four years ago, to serve 30 days and his unexpired sentence. According to testimony before Magistrate James J. O'Connor, he created a disturbance at the home of his wife, in West General Robinson street. Police learned O'Keefe was serving a six months sentence when he escaped.

O'Connor Sentences 2 to Attend Church

Mr. and Mrs. Lillian Seng, of 2043 Chateau street, today promised Magistrate James J. O'Connor they would attend church together on Sunday evenings, and a disorderly conduct charge against Mrs. Seng was dropped. Last Sunday the pair quarreled, according to testimony, and Mrs. Seng swallowed poison.

RELIEF SESSION IS SET

bot act. Any funds remaining might be used for direct relief.

Additional revenue would be sought by bringing gas, water and steam heat companies within the scope of the eight-mill gross receipts levy and revising the taxing of foreign corporations.

HOUSING BILLS

A salient proposal was to authorize the formation of housing companies which would build dwellings for city workmen at rentals to be fixed by the Legislature. Along the same line, another bill would authorize building and loan associations to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Additional relief for closed bank depositors would be gained by permitting the Banking Secretary to pledge the assets of the banks for loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and to lease their real estate.

Relief Legislation Proposed for Special Session

HARRISBURG, June 21.—(INS.)—The text of the agenda for the special Assembly session on relief, agreed upon by Gov. Gifford Pinchot and state leaders, follows:

1.—A bill permitting all cities and other political subdivisions to make in 1932 emergency loans against uncollected delinquent taxes for unemployment relief and to pay the salaries of full-time employes; also to refund such loans annually on an emergency basis for the four years, 1933-1936, inclusive.

2.—A constitutional amendment providing for the following state loans:

(a) A loan in the amount to be determined by the Legislature to reimburse counties, cities, and poor districts for amounts previously expended by them for food, clothing, fuel or shelter for the unemployed.

(b) Twenty-five million dollars to meet the expense of the state government during the two-year period beginning June 1, 1933, if the 1933 session of the Legislature determines such a loan to be necessary.

(c) Loans from the federal government, if and when the Legislature authorizes the Governor to make them.

INSTALLMENT TAXES

3—An act allowing all political subdivisions of the state by ordinance to permit local taxes to be paid in monthly installments.

4—An act extending the borrowing power of Philadelphia.

5—An act giving all political subdivisions of the state more effective power to collect delinquent taxes.

6—An act allowing the Council of Philadelphia to fix the number and compensation of employes of Philadelphia County.

7—An act restoring appropriations for mothers' assistance, hospitals and universities abated by the passage of the Talbot act.

8—An act revising the method of taxing foreign corporations so as to compel them to pay more nearly on an equality with domestic corporations.

9—Eliminating the exemption from the eight mills gross-receipts tax on natural gas companies, artificial gas companies, water companies and steam heat companies.

BUILDING SLASH

10—Reduce state building appropriations.

11—Authorize the creation of limited dividend housing corporations to construct improved dwellings for workers in large cities, maximum rentals to be fixed by legislation.

12—Authorize the Secretary of Banking to pledge assets of closed banks for loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and authorize him to lease real estate of closed banks for terms not exceeding 10 years.

13—Authorize building and loan associations within certain limits to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

14—Approve constitutional amendment authorizing the state to distribute in whole or in part among political subdivisions any tax collected by the state.

Girl, 21, to Receive Engineering Degree

LEXINGTON, Ky.—(INS.)—Miss Carol Yoder, 21, of Indianapolis, is to receive a degree from the engineering college of the University of Kentucky. She will be the fourth girl in the school's history to graduate in that work.

SALE OF RELIEF BONDS HELD UP

Indications that the sale of $800,000 relief bonds, requested by the Allegheny County Emergency Association, would not be made, except as a "last resort," had been given by City Council today.

The sale of part of the $5,000,000 issue was asked by the association when it became apparent funds available from the Talbot act appropriation were nearly exhausted.

Further action hinges on a conference in Mayor Charles H. Kline's office at 10 a. m. tomorrow of Controller James P. Kerr, Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the welfare department; Major Philip Mathews, Frank R. Phillips, chairman of the association's operating committee, and members of Council.

In Council's meeting yesterday Finance Committee Chairman W. Y. English said:

"The bond issue voted by the people at the April primaries was to be used only as a 'last resort.' We haven't reached the 'last resort' yet. There will be a special session of the Legislature soon and maybe something will be done at that time."

Blue Law Violator Pays Fine Promptly

FRANKLIN, Pa., June 21.—L. T. Houghton, manager of the Orpheum Theater, is paying his fine for violating the Sunday blue laws on schedule. There is a standing charge against him before Justice McVay, in Sandy Creek Township. Yesterday Houghton appeared without arrest, and paid fines totaling $21 for himself and two employes as a result of the performance Sunday evening. His voluntary appearance saved him additional costs.

Breaks His Other Leg, Back in Hospital

Peter Mullen, 38, of 521 Armandale street, was back in the Allegheny General Hospital today with another fractured leg. Five weeks ago he was discharged from the hospital after a long confinement with a broken right leg. Last night he sustained a fracture of the left leg, detectives said, when he fell down a flight of stairs while visiting a sister in Sampson street, North Side.

Exonerated in Death Of Pool Dynamiter

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., June 21.—William Gribble, 57, fish warden of this city, who shot and killed Charles Kuchmas, 28, of Uhrichsville, when the latter failed to comply with his command to come ashore after the victim tossed a dynamite cap into the water from his boat, was exonerated by Coroner J. F. Lewis. The Coroner held the shooting was accidental.

Neck Broken, Man Shuns Doctor's Care

DOVER, O., June 21.—M. J. Miller, of Sugar Creek, is in Union Hospital today. He suffered from a broken neck for 10 days without calling a physician. When he moved he held his head with his hands. Yesterday Miller summoned a physician, who placed his neck in a cast and sent him to the hospital. Physicians say he will recover.

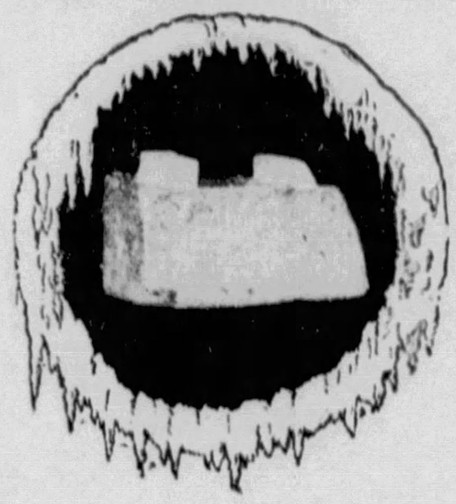
BUTTER

—wrapped with the magic "Kold Aire"



No matter how good butter may be when you buy it—the softening in the heat on the way home and the rehardening in your refrigerator most assuredly takes away the "bloom" of any butter—it cannot have all its pristine flavor, aroma and the exquisite bouquet that makes the poet call it "imprisoned fairy gold from nature's richest storehouse."

DONAHOE'S
Kold Aire
(Trademark Registered)

Keeps Donahoe's Butter firm for several hours—no matter how high the temperature soars. There's no extra charge for wrapping Donahoe's Butter with Kold Aire—that's just an extra bit of service—the sort of thing you EXPECT from the World's Finest Food Store.

HEAD ROTARIAN LAUDS IDEALS

SEATTLE, June 21.—(AP.)—The mission of Rotary International in bringing together diverse races and faiths for their common betterment was described to Rotarians from all over the world here last night by Sydney W. Pascall, their president.

Pascall, a London confectioner, warned the twenty-first annual convention of the organization against "vagueness, insincerity." He said:

"Rotary has already accomplished so much and displayed its hold on different minds in many races that its future is certain, provided we keep up the quality of our membership. Rotary can never be greater than the Rotarian. If we choose the right men, the leadership will be all right."

He told the delegates Viceroy Willingdon, of India, expressed the opinion to him "that if India had more of the friendly Rotary inter-racialism, much of the present bitterness would never have arisen."

Fewer Children Shown in Census

WASHINGTON, June 21.—(INS.)—Despite an increase of 16 per cent in the population of the United States between 1920 and 1930, there was a decrease of 1 per cent in children under 5 years, the Census Bureau announced yesterday. The total population in 1930 was 122,775,046 and the number of children under 5 years of age 11,444,390.

In general the percentage of children is the highest in the rural farm population and lowest in the urban population, with the rural non-farm population occupying an intermediate position, the bureau said.

EIGHT KILLED BY BANDITS

MERIDA, Yucatan, June 21.—(INS.)—Eight persons, including Rafael Peon Arana, general manager of the Bank of Yucatan, were murdered yesterday by bandits who attacked his hacienda near Sanfaines in the State of Quintana Roo.

The other seven victims were servants of Arana and their children. They included three women and two children.

The assassins attacked the hacienda and shot down the owner and his servants in cold blood. Arana was a member of one of the wealthiest and oldest families in Yucatan.

EXPERTS SPEAK AT STEEL MEET

Technical discussions occupied the single session today of the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers convention in the William Penn Hotel.

Standard control apparatus was being discussed by E. L. Upp, of McKeesport, at the session being held under auspices of the electrical engineering division. F. O. Schnure, Sparrows Point, Md., was presiding. Ladie crane practices were to be discussed by F. W. Cramer, Youngstown, while T. R. Rhea, Schnectady, spoke on electron tube application. A. F. Corby, Jr., Philadelphia, and W. B. Shirk, East Pittsburgh, were closing speakers.

PINCHOT BACKS APPOINTMENTS

HARRISBURG, June 21. — (INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot has refused flatly to accede to the demand of the commissioners of Mifflin County that he recall two of the seven appointments to the local board of trustees of the Mothers' Assistance Fund.

The Governor made public a copy of the letter he sent to the Mifflin County commissioners in which he asserted that he could not be coerced into recalling appointments because of the threat that unless he did so the county would not match the state appropriation to the fund. The letter did not name the specific appointments that were unsatisfactory to the commissioners. It said:

"If you choose to let orphaned children go hungry because you can not dictate appointments to the Mothers' Assistance Board of your county, that is something for which you must answer to your constituents."

SYNOD MEETING OPENS TONIGHT

More than 200 delegates and ministers will attend the opening session of the Pittsburgh Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America, tonight in the First Lutheran Church of Warren, Pa. The Rev. H. H. Bagger, of Pittsburgh, president of the synod, will conduct the service, assisted by the Rev. Frank W. Ash, of Penn, Pa., secretary of the synod.

Business sessions will be held tomorrow. Election of three secretaries and a treasurer is scheduled. The synod will close its meeting Friday night.

Customs Men Seize Whisky on Boat

DETROIT, June 21. — (INS.) — Seventy-two quarts of whisky were seized from between 35 and 40 members of the Detroit Board of Commerce as they returned here yesterday from their annual lake cruise, customs officials reported.

The steamer visited various Canadian ports on the cruise. Customs men boarded the boat at the dock and carefully inspected the baggage of each returning member.

The Men's Store Opens at 8 A.M. Tomorrow for

HORNE'S Semi-Annual Shirt Sale

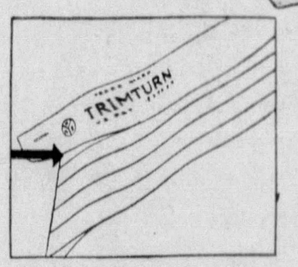
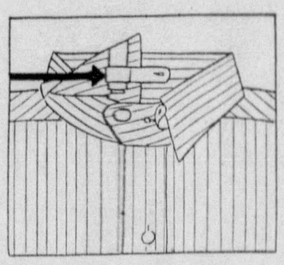
Yorke Make

$1.25

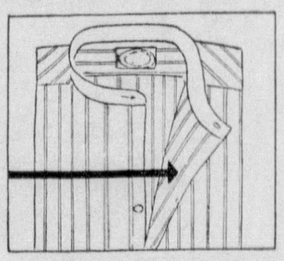
Men must have shirts, and the Horne Semi-Annual Shirt Sale is the time to buy them. With a general tendency to step down in quality, we have stepped up—setting a new standard of value for this historic event. With costs down as they are today, why not profit by the situation to give men the best in quality instead of the cheapest?



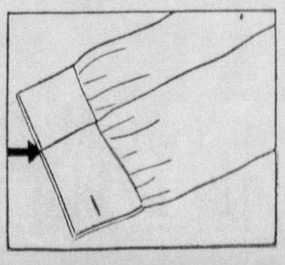
The "TRIMTURN" collar, an exclusive Yorke patent, is shape-retaining and gives longer service.



The collar attached shirts feature also the new tab, Prince of Wales collar model, a distinctive style note.



In the fancy shirts, all the patterns are woven through the cloth. There are no prints or percales.



All shirts are full washed and zero shrunk, eliminating all question of proper fit after washing.

20,000 Yorke Shirts---all brand-new, shown for the first time tomorrow, await your selection. We predict a complete sell-out on the strength of the qualities and values.

White Neckband Shirts, sizes 13½ to 18½.

Sleeve-Lengths, 32 to 36 inches, in proportionate neck sizes.

Telephone Order Board will receive orders until 9 o'clock tonight and all day tomorrow.

Court 3000

The Men's Store will open at 8 o'clock tomorrow for early comers. Telegraph, mail, or telephone your orders, if it is not possible to be here in person. Or have your wife, mother, or sister represent you at the Sale tomorrow. The women folks, who know fabrics and workmanship, will be especially competent to judge the values. Shirts will be arranged according to styles, sizes, and sleeve-lengths, to simplify selection. Every facility has been provided for prompt and satisfactory service.

TITLE FIGHT ON AIR -:- -:- Schmeling-Sharkey Bout WCAE and KDKA Feature

McNamee Describes Battle

The world's heavyweight championship fight between Max Schmeling, German titleholder, and Jack Sharkey, American contender, in the Madison Square Garden Bowl, is brought to millions of fight fans at 10 o'clock tonight over both networks of the National Broadcasting Company including WCAE and KDKA. The ringside story is broadcast by

Mr. McNamee

Graham McNamee, ace sports announcer, and Charles Francis Coe, author. In addition to the standard wave, the short-wave facilities here of W8XK pick up the blow-by-blow description by Harry Sperber, sports editor of the New Yorker Staats Zeitung, for rebroadcast in Germany.

The broadcast is sponsored by the Lucky Strike Hour. If the fight should not last the full hour, Jack Denny and his orchestra, playing from the Waldorf-Astoria roof in New York, are heard for the remainder of the program.

Presentation by President Hoover of the gold medal of the National Geographic Society to Amelia Earhart Putnam, in recognition of her lone flight across the Atlantic, is broadcast over an NBC network, including WCAE tonight at 9 o'clock. The President speaks briefly during the ceremonies in Constitution Hall and the flier tells some of the details of her solo hop from Harbor Grace to Londonderry, Ireland.

Program Pointers

Jack Pettis and his orchestra, making their bow before the KDKA microphone in the Urban Room of the William Penn Hotel, are heard tonight at 11:20. Pettis, one of America's leading saxophone virtuosos, comes to Pittsburgh from the Hotel New Yorker to succeed Lew Conrad and his Musketeers. Pettis' music from the New Yorker frequently has been heard on late WCAE dance programs . . . . Miss Alberta, the Tyrolienne Song Bird of vaudeville, presents one of her original programs from KDKA tonight at 8:30.

Jack Pettis

"The Strange Countess" is the Edgar Wallace thriller dramatized during the "Crime Club" presentation on WJAS at 9:30.

Ed Wynn burlesques another opera over WCAE tonight at 9:30.

Ray Perkins sings one of his own compositions, "A Life of Luxury," on WCAE at 7:30.

Gov. George White, of Ohio, is principal speaker at the unveiling of a monument to Gen. Custer, Indian fighter, heard over WCAE tomorrow at 3 p. m.

Fan Fare

Virginia Rea, the songster heard during the Victor Herbert Memorial program on WCAE Sunday, is none other than your old friend, Olive Palmer . . . Walter O'Keefe takes things easy during his cigaret programs . . . He sits in front of a table with his coat off and his shirt sleeves rolled up . . . June Pursell is now the featured singer with Jack Denny and his band at the Waldorf-Astoria . . . Lee Sims, master showman of the keys, never misses a big league baseball game.

Miss Rea

During the recent program which introduced the Corn Cob Pipe Club to WCAE listeners, the most complete congolemration of barnyard noises ever put on the air was used. Every animal or bird ever heard on a farm was imitated by the cast.

The night session of the Republican National Convention to debate the prohibition plank spoiled a record for Billy Jones and Ernie Hare. In 10 years of broadcasting, they had never been forced off the air after being in the studios ready to go on, except by an SOS.

When Frank and Lawrence Andrini, heard on the Nite Club of the Air, first arrived in this country from their native Italy, the greatest delicacy which caught their eyes was an ice cream cone. They bought all they could eat at every railroad stop en route to Los Angeles, and arrived in that city without a cent.

Question Box

Who are the "Humming Birds" with Whispering Jack Smith on KDKA?—L. B. C., Carnegie.

61,173 miles without motor repairs

. . . on AMOCO OIL and GAS

THERE'S real protection for any motor in Amoco Motor Oil and Amoco-Gas!

Dramatic proof was recently found by a large public utility company that has been using Amoco products exclusively for several years.

One of their trucks that had travelled 61,173 miles over mountainous territory . . . winter and summer . . . on good roads and bad, was examined by a famous public engine testing laboratory and carefully checked for wear. The truck was in good running order, and not a penny had been spent on the motor for repairs.

Valves and seats in good condition. No signs of burning. Clearance within .004" of specifications. Compressions 75-80 pounds.

Crankshaft end play within .003" of specifications.

Cylinder head free from carbon. Only a very slight coating of sludge on bottom of pan. Pump screen clean.

The owners of this truck were not surprised. Many of their cars and trucks have run over the 50,000 mile mark without carbon removal.

What better proof that Amoco Motor Oil and Amoco-Gas reduce operating expenses and add to the life of any car!

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Poison Ivy Time Is Here—Beware!

At this time of year cases of poison from ivy are common. Ivy poisoning is an annoying and distressing inflammation of the skin, caused by an irritating substance found in various plants and trees. In this country the most common form of poisoning is caused by the "Rhus" group of plants, such as poison ivy, poison oak and poison sumac.

Dr. Copeland.

The eruption usually involves the skin of the hands and face, but may be found over the entire body. There is a great deal of discomfort with burning, itching and swelling of the affected parts. Most cases of ivy poisoning are mild in nature, yet severe and prolonged cases are frequently met.

Not all persons exposed to poison ivy necessarily contract the disease; only those who possess a sensitivity to the plant. Contrary to common belief, it is not necessary to have direct contact with the poisoning plant. Cases of poisoning are found in persons who merely have been in the vicinity of the poison ivy. The sap may be carried to the susceptible individual by the wind, or by contact with clothing, tools, insects or any other object that has had direct exposure to the plant.

The afflicted person complains of an intense irritation of the skin, which at first resembles any other skin inflammation. Redness and itching of the skin is followed by swelling and pronounced blister formation, and the attack lasts from four to six days.

The blisters should be punctured and thoroughly cleansed with soap and water. Washing in a direction away from the healthy skin will prevent spread of the inflammation.

Persons susceptible to this disease should avoid the poisonous plant. If they have been exposed, the skin should be thoroughly bathed in warm water and scrubbed with an alkaline soap, and the skin then sponged with alcohol or gasoline, to dissolve the poison.

Severe cases of poison ivy should be under the care of a physician. The mild forms usually respond to the ordinary soothing lotions.

The most satisfactory lotion is that known as the calamine and zinc lotion. This should be applied only after the blisters have dried. This lotion forms a crust, which is soothing and beneficial. It should be removed with olive oil or cotton-seed oil, never with water.

In severe and painful cases, comfort and relief can be obtained by painting the afflicted parts with melted wax. This form of treatment gives instantaneous relief and shortens the attack.

Within recent years a vaccine of the Rhus poisons has been used to cure as well as prevent the attacks. This vaccine is given by hypodermic injection. Unfortunately, the injections are painful and in many cases the results have not been beneficial. While this treatment is still in its experimental stage, it is hoped that within a short time a vaccine will be perfected that will prevent or cure this distressing ailment.

THEFT SUSPECT HELD FOR QUIZ

Alfonso Capo, 21, of 6030 Station street, arrested yesterday when he was said to have been unable to show credentials as a solicitor for the Father Cox Relief Fund, was held over in East End Police Court today.

Capo was identified, police said, by Mrs. P. C. Trimble, 2081 Beechwood boulevard, as the man she had seen leaving the home of S. C. Fuller, 2085 Shady avenue, after articles had been stolen. He also was identified, police say, in connection with thefts at other homes, police reported.

Jewelry and Money Stolen in Robberies

Jewelry and money were stolen in two robberies reported to city detectives today.

Alenta Reger, of 733 Forbes street, reported $85 was stolen from his trousers in his rooming house. Miss Mildred Payne, of 303 Lehigh avenue, East End, reported jewelry and clothing valued at $30 was stolen during the night from her home.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

(But they fill a column!)

That when Marguerite of Valois, sister of Charles IX of France, married Henry of Navarre, against her will, she refused to respond at the altar when the marriage queries were given. Twice she ignored the questions. Finally Charlie socked her in the back of the dome, forcing her head forward, which the parson accepted as her "I Do." (Nice people.)

That in Chicago there are two streets, a block apart, which are respectively christened—Constance—and—Bennett.

That the women of Ladakh, a town in the Himalayas of Asia, can legally have four husbands each. And the woman who cannot handle that many mates is snubbed, ostracized, belittled and shunned.

That rainbows shine at night in Hawaii.

That your ice cubes will freeze much faster if you use boiling water instead of cold. (Say! That's worth money.)

That emeralds are found in Alexandra County, N. Carolina.

That while there is an alleged depression going on—college endowments for 1931 totaled $48,940,000. (Hospitals got less.)

That all swans in England are owned by the King.

That being dictator of Russia isn't so hot. Stalin rates a two-room apartment in the Kremlin, while Maxim Litvinoff, Commissar of Foreign Affairs, dwells in four rooms and has a garage, yet!

That the smallest sale ever recorded for a book was 2 copies; a record established by the Bronte Sisters.

That the early founders of Christianity—the first martyrs of their faith—were called "atheists" by their tormentors.

That Thackeray wished he were Shakespeare's bookblack.

That when former Mayor McClellan, now in his 60s, recently returned from Europe and a reporter (who recognized him) asked him why he always remained in the background, he replied: "I died at 35."

That Defoe, however, wrote "Robinson Crusoe" at 60.

That it was Julius Caesar who first made the crack (since altered): "I'd rather be first in a little town than second at Rome."

That Lowell observed the agreeable aristocrats were those born to the aristocratic state and therefore unconscious.

That Tom Hyde, the tailor, standing on the gallows, was asked if he had anything to say. "Tell the tailors," he replied, "to remember to make a knot in their thread before taking the first stitch."

That it was Reynolds' belief that it is impossible for two painters in the same line of art to live in friendship.

That Frederick the Great once saw a crowd reading a scurrilous attack on himself. It was a placard and was posted high. He ordered it put lower so that it might be easily read. (Atta boy!)

That social success, in the opinion of one authority, is the infinite capacity of being bored. (Ah, there, Cholly!)

That in early times cannibalism was practised in Scotland, which later produced a Hume, a Burns, a Scott and a Carlyle.

That in Africa they hiss when they want to applaud.

That an English court has ruled monkeys have no feet.

That Edward S. Jordan, the auto manufacturer, says there is nothing more instructive than a kick in the pants.

That more women than men pay taxes on incomes of $500,000 a year or more.

That it is illegal to tip Australian pullman porters.

That Abraham Lincoln forgot to go to his own wedding until frantic friends reminded him of the event.

That the Chinese and the Japanese use the same written language, though their spoken lingoes are different.

That residents of Promise (land), Oregon, look across the river into Eden and by traveling downstream can reach Paradise.

That Wilson Mizner (the Dorothy Parker, tee-hee, of Hollywood), once sang for handouts under the name of Gerald Salvini.

That the New York phone company has been enriched about $3,000 daily by people who ask "What time is it?"

That the gels who dance at the Orpheum (where two millionaires' sons won brides) must come with two recommendations and have a high school education. So that, it is explained, they may carry on a conversation intelligently. Tickets are 12½ cents, of which they get 5.

That Chicago has a breadline for women only.

That there now is on the market a non-skid soap.

That the New York Crime Prevention Bureau, which costs $94,474 a year to run, has never prevented a crime.

That Bugs Baer says you can say what you like about him but he isn't the type who clicks the lid of a mail box twice.

-:- Plays and Players -:-

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Who do you suppose led as a boxoffice star, according to a poll of theaters conducted by the Motion Picture Herald, a trade magazine? Right—Marie Dressler. Wallace Beery heads the men in the first compilation of the figures, which are not yet complete. Exhibitors were asked to list the 10 players who, since last September, drew the greatest number of patrons, regardless of age of picture, nature of competition, length of run, weather conditions. The result names more than 200 players, graded according to a percentage indicated by the number of citations, Miss Dressler being at the top with 91 per cent. Janet Gaynor, Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo and Norma Shearer follow in the order named. Runners-up to Wallace Beery, among the men, are Will Rogers, Charles Farrell, Clark Gable and Wheeler and Woolsey. George O'Brien, western star, standing just under Richard Dix, outranks such players as James Cagney, Frederic March, Jack Holt, Buster Keaton and Richard Barthelmess. Polly Moran is shown to be a better draw than Ann Harding, and Mickey Mouse has a higher position than Harold Lloyd who of course, had no new picture in the period covered by the survey. The percentage rating means that Miss Dressler was among the list of 10 named by the exhibitors in 91 per cent of the replies.

When Katharine Cornell goes abroad for her vacation she expects to see Clemence Dane in England. Miss Dane wrote "A Bill of Divorcement," in which Miss Cornell achieved her first New York success and she is writing a play around the Bronte sisters, Charlotte, Emily and Anne, supposedly as a future vehicle for Miss Cornell.

A ballyhoo for "Bring 'Em Back Alive," an animal picture, stopped traffic on Broadway. Engineered by Terry Turner, once a theater manager here, it was a display of life-size mechanical models of animals atop a theater marquee. Elephants, lions, etc., and jungle sounds made the natives of the metropolis (or maybe they were only visitors) gape, and traffic had to stand still. The "big town" is so blase!

Bonus Army March to Be Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 21. That dramatic march of the bonus army to Washington already is on its way to the screen.

Two Paramount writers, Malcolm Boylan and Harvey Gates, have been assigned to rush through a story to be filmed under the title of "Washington, Here We Are."

Aside from scoring a journalistic scoop on the other studios, Paramount has a sure-fire box-office idea of writing in a couple of Flagg and Quirt characters for Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen. As both these actors are playing on the lot in another picture, "Riddle Me This," Sam Katz merely will have to get their names on a contract. And with the new regime at Paramount in full stride, this ought to be a matter of routine.

Victor McLaglen

It is rather droll, the case of the actor who is telling his friends that the return of a certain studio executive will mean more parts for him.

"How come?" they ask.

BOULEVARD TALK

Al Jolson and his director, Harry D'Arrast, are singing slightly out of key. Differences will be adjusted though . . . Newest Hollywood arrival is George Cohan, Jr. He has just graduated from Georgetown Prep and will spend the summer here with his father. Young Cohan is 18 years old and was quarterback on his school's football team last year . . . Virginia Cherrill was dancing the other evening with Charles Feldman. Boy, page Raquel Torres . . . Most earnest tennis foursome at the beach these days is Bebe Daniels, Constance Talmadge, Shirley Mason and Mrs. George Archainbaud.

Virginia Cherrill

They play under the tutelage of Mrs. May Sutton Bundy . . . Still another studio, R-K-O, is testing Herman Brix, the shot-put champion . . . Fifi Dorsay sleeps till noon . . . Not all the stars are giving up polo. George O'Brien has bought acreage next to his Culver City stables and will have his own polo field in the future. He'll also rent ponies to the studios.

Movie Bills Change

"Attorney For the Defense," with Edmund Lowe in the leading role, opens tomorrow in the Enright.

Lilian Harvey, dainty English girl, has the main role in "Congress Dances," German-made feature film, with English speech, opening in the Fulton Thursday.

"The Country Fair," coming to the Sheridan Square screen tomorrow, features Marion Shilling, 1931 Wampas baby star, as the leading lady.

Fredric March and Sylvia Sidney co-star in "Merrily We Go to Hell," coming to the Stanley, Friday.

"Thunder Below," with Tallulah Bankhead, Paul Lukas and Charles Bickford, comes to the Warner screen Friday.

Ladley, manager of the Continental Assurance Company and secretary-treasurer of W. L. Ladley Sons, Inc., charged cruelty. The couple was married October 14, 1925.

French Invade Le Cinema Allemand

By GEORGE SEIBEL

This will have to be reported to the League of Nations.

The annexation of Elsass-Lothringen and the invasion of the Ruhr have been followed by another piece of French aggression. The Gallic Cock has roosted in the German Cinema on Liberty avenue, where a French film, "Le Million," replaces the gemuetliche atmosphere of Munich and Vienna with Parisian accents and boulevard farce.

Mr. Seibel

It is very harmless and really funny—a semi-operatic series of incidents dealing with a lottery ticket, a stolen coat, wild doings behind the scenes of the Comique, with a very fat prima donna as romantic juvenile, while the lovers caught on the stage when the curtain rises bill and coo behind the set piece unseen by the audience. It is fast and furious farce, full of amusing bohemian scenes and characters—admirably acted, admirably directed and staged, admirably photographed. But the audience is lost like Poincare in the Bremen Rathskeller.

The other film, "Avalanche," is equally difficult though presented in English. In some respects this is the most remarkable picture shown here in a long time. Its climax is a most realistic storm on Mont Blanc, with driving tempests of ice incrusting the hut of the weather man on top of the Alpine peak.

But this is preceded by other remarkable scenes—one in an astronomical observatory showing all the telescopic mechanism in operation, another of ski-runners playing at hare-and-hounds, another of an airplane circling the horn of Mont Blanc. The picture is as instructive as it is terrifying, and by whatever tricks it was produced it is a masterpiece.

There is nothing light or frivolous at the Cinema this week except the French farce, "Le Million," and that of course is caviare across the Rhine.

Want LOW PRICES and High QUALITY? Here's your tire!

GOODYEAR SPEEDWAY

Prices quoted here include the new U. S. tax, effective June 21, 1932. Even with this tax, prices are lower than they have ever been in any previous summer of tire history.

You get a real Goodyear—with the Goodyear name on the sidewall. You get the safety, the road-grip, the trouble-free mileage of tough new Goodyear rubber in the tread. You get the extra life, the extra endurance of patented Goodyear Supertwist in the carcass. You get a tire which millions have praised as the quality tire within the reach of all.

When you read these prices, and think what you get for them, you'll certainly ask yourself: "Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more!"

SIX "PLIES"?

You can count six layers of cord here, but the first two under the tread in this tire (or in any so-called "six-ply" tire built this way) do not run from bead to bead. Some tire-makers count these as "plies," but they are really "breaker strips," so we call them that

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

DID YOU ever harbor a desire to know exactly what people think about you? I take it for granted that you have, because I know I have—and if you're reading this space, I imagine that you and I are pretty much the same. And if that sounds like a rap to you, please don't take it that way.

I can't begin to tell you how many times I've wished I were present when people were discussing me or my alleged column. Occasionally, for example, I run into Mr. Barney Gallant, the most charming of the restaurateurs. Mr. Gallant places his handsome countenance close to mine and grows extremely confidential.

"Too bad you didn't drop in earlier," he will say. "Heywood Broun just left. We had a long talk about you."

That pleases me. Deep down, it astounds me a little, too. When I sit back and survey my dubious accomplishments, I can find no reason why I should ever be a topic of discussion. I've never done anything to merit it. But I never argue about such things. It doesn't pay to betray emotions—especially when the emotions are honest. So I merely continue to sip my ginger ale and look very wise, indeed.

"You don't say," I return. "Well, that's certainly interesting. What did Mr. Broun have to say about me?"

Whereupon Mr. Gallant shrugs his shoulders.

"Well," he murmurs doubtfully, "I think he likes you."

And that's as far as I ever get. I go on through the years, waiting and hoping to get the real lowdown on myself. But it never comes. If they praise me, I know they're kidding. If they rap me, I like to think they're kidding. So how are you going to beat a system like that?

It wasn't until the other afternoon that I finally saw an opportunity to beat the system. I was in a downtown office building on a visit to Mr. Jesse Mittelmann, master of art, letters and overcoats. I said goodbye to that estimable gentleman, walked down the corridor and rang the bell for an elevator. A woman was standing nearby—and my heart bounced. No, you've got me wrong again. It wasn't because she was beautiful. Not by a long shot. As a matter of fact, she was a woman in her forties and, while her face wouldn't stop a clock, it wasn't a map that would make the time pass any more rapidly. My heart bounced for the plain and simple reason that the lady was reading this column.

I imagine that I shouldn't have acted as I did, but I couldn't help myself. I saw before me the perfect opportunity to find out what I wanted to know.

"Pardon me, madam," I said. "Please don't think I'm starting a flirtation, because that's very far from my mind. I wonder if you'd do me a great favor?"

She held tightly to the paper and looked at me in a most suspicious manner. I smiled in a fashion that I considered very reassuring.

"That elevator will be along any day now," I told her, "and my question really means a great deal to me. Wouldn't you do me the favor of answering it?"

This time she talked.

"What do you want to know?" she said.

I pointed to the paper.

"I couldn't help seeing the fact that you were reading Hellinger's column," I murmured. "I happen to be interested in that guy's work, and I'd like to get a real line on him from some outsider. That's why I spoke to you about it.

"Just what do you think of his column? Do you enjoy reading it?"

She looked at me again. And she evidently determined that I was on the level about this thing.

"Well, mister," she replied, "as long as you asked me so nicely, I'll have to answer. Whether I enjoy it or not, I don't know. With me, it's a habit!" . . .

SPEAKING of Heywood Broun, as I was a few paragraphs back, reminds me that I have been watching his very excellent column for an item that, thus far, has failed to appear. I trust he will not mind if I use it here.

Several weeks ago, with Mr. Broun present, the Socialists held their convention in Milwaukee, Wis. Regarding one of the planks, a great dispute suddenly arose. I can't recall the exact nature of the argument, but I do know that it involved the spending of millions and millions of dollars.

Impassioned speeches were made, in which the talkers urged the convention to accept the plank that would cause the government to spend $5,000,000 for a certain cause. Other speakers asked that the sum of $10,000,000 be written down. And so it went. The millions were flying around in an extremely loose fashion.

At the end of the session, a collection of $145 had to be taken up in order to pay for the hall!...

ALTHOUGH I am far from being a radio fanatic, there are times when I actually bless my trusty machine. Such an occasion arrived the other night when I listened for hours to the prohibition argument in the Republican convention in Chicago.

Some of the arguments would have been very funny if they hadn't been so sad. When one bird chirped that American youth knows nothing of the saloon as it existed before prohibition, I gave out a slight shiver. Another chap handed out a tear jerker about the mothers of our glorious land that would have sounded convincing only if Al Jolson had sung "Mammy" at the same time. Such stupid display of hypocrisy, wind and buncombe I never before encountered in my career.

All in all, though, I find that I no longer grow too excited about the situation. I've seen so many terrible things and I've read so much hooey about prohibition that I suppose—like so many others—I've grown accustomed to the situation. What else is there for us average mortals to do?

Thus, when I hear a smug gentleman assert that we must not go backward and that we must hold on to the gains that prohibition has given us, I merely swallow hard and let it go at that. With depression on all sides, with saloons running openly in every city and hamlet in the United States, with children drinking terrible scotch and gin from flasks and paper cups, with drunkenness forever on the increase, with racketeers more powerful than any police system, with America the laughing stock of the world—we are told that we must hold on to our prohibition gains. Ah, my friends, how raw this political game can sometimes become!

Here is something that may amuse us: One of the strongest opponents of the repeal plank—and I will not say that he was a speaker because that would be a bad giveaway—is well-known to certain gentlemen along Broadway. This hypocritical jackass visits a small apartment speakeasy in town on an average of three times a year. He sometimes stays for as long as three days at a time—and he settled his last bill with a check for $7,300. But what a time he has for himself!

"I presume that that is why he is against the repeal of the prohibition act. Just think of the fun he'd miss—the two-faced phony! . . .

The bridal party for another of June's fashionable weddings has just been completed. And it's the wedding of Frances Preble Reed, daughter of Mrs. James Hay Reed, and James Chambers McKay, son of the Thomas Jefferson McKays. It's taking place, you know, in the Shadyside Presbyterian Church on Monday.

I have already told you that Katharine Frazer is to be the maid of honor and that the bridesmaids will be Virginia Drake, Laura Salisbury Evans, Mrs. John E. McKelvey, Mary Jennings Hill, Mary Clark Black and Mary Annette Trimble and now I can tell you who will be ushers and best man.

Thomas J. McKay, Jr., is to be his brother's best man, and ushers will be John Hartwell Hillman, III, Joel Wakeman Burdick, II, Charles Louis Flaccus, Jr., and James McKay and Roland Erving, cousins of the bridegroom; William Andrew Robinson, II, and Malcom Hay, cousins of the bride; Lawrence McKay, brother of the bridegroom; John Creighton, of South Orange, N. J.; Harry G. Bartol, Jr., and Gouverneur Morris Phelps, Jr., of New York, and Charles Meredith Dupuy, of Indianapolis.

Katharine Frazer is to be hostess at the rehearsal dinner Saturday at the Fox Chapel Golf Club and Betty McKay will give the wedding breakfast in the morning in the Allegheny Country Club.

Most successful have been the week-end "pilgrimages" to the gardens of Sewickley and Sewickley Heights estates of a large number of society women. Certain gardens are opened each Saturday and Sunday during this month for the benefit of the Allegheny General Hospital, you know, and so far the project has been most successful, reports Mrs. Maitland Alexander, whose garden was among the first opened.

Garden Visits

And this Saturday and Sunday, when the rambler roses, Madonna Lilies and delphinium will be at their loveliest, the Sewickley gardens on exhibit will include those of Mrs. George Clapp, Mrs. F. R. Dravo, Mrs. John Joy Edson, Mrs. William Galbraith, Mrs. B. F. Jones III, and Mrs. Halsey Williams.

37 Women Make Pilgrimage in Bus To Necessity With Stop at Gen. Braddock's Grave

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Something new in the way of outings, and certainly most fitting for the organization that had it, was the pilgrimage which the Woman's Historical Society made to Fort Necessity yesterday. Thirty-seven members chartered a bus, stopped at the historical old Mingo Presbyterian Church on the way and had luncheon at the Summit House, Uniontown. After a short business meeting there, the pilgrimage was renewed and the old fort was reached in mid-afternoon.

There Harry R. Blackford, assistant engineer for Fayette County, addressed the "pilgrims," explaining and describing the fort and the battle. Braddock's Grave on the National highway was visited on the return trip. Mrs. E. D. Harshberger, the society's new president, was among those in the party, arrangements for which were made by the social chairman, Mrs. Harry Ross.

Yesterday's affair concludes the current season and the new one will be begun the second Monday in October.

An annual affair that is always of importance to a large circle of patrons is the lawn fete of the United Presbyterian Women's Association which is to be held Thursday afternoon and evening on the grounds of the Home for Aged People, Penn and Trenton avenues, Wilkinsburg.

Fete at U. P. Home

Under Mrs. W. H. Vincent's general chairmanship, several committees are preparing for the event. Miss Jennie Long heads the decorating committee; J. L. Beatty is gate chairman; Dr. Henry Heckel, dinner tickets; Miss Annie Campbell, lighting; Mrs. Frank Armstrong, music; Mrs. T. C. Duff, dining room; Mrs. Samuel Dempster, common-sense booth; Mrs. D. T. McKeag, Priscilla booth; Mrs. J. P. Cameron, printing, and Miss Edith Woolridge, candy.

The auxiliary to the orphan's home will look after the ice cream; the auxiliary to Columbia Hospital will have charge of the lemonade and amusements will be arranged and directed by the auxiliary to the Home for the Aged.

Plans to make an unusually attractive vacation spot for girls and women are now under way at the Pittsburgh Y. W. C. A. summer camp which will open shortly. Lying along the Connoquenessing Creek, near Zelienople, Camp Carondowanna covers over 100 acres of field and woodland and offers a wide variety of outdoor activity.

In addition to the activities building at the camp, there are several sleeping cabins and a crafts cabin, tennis courts and sports fields. Training in camp crafts, nature lore, sports, dramatics, music and handicrafts are available under trained counselors, and hikes, campfires and other events are a part of each week's program throughout the summer.

REPULSIVE!
to use your handkerchief over and over
USE KLEENEX and destroy at once!

EVER stop to think how repulsive a handkerchief is, once it's used?

It certainly is nothing you want to carry back to your face. It's not even fit to put in a laundry bag—where it contaminates other clothing.

It's incredible to think that anyone could choose to use a handkerchief, now that Kleenex is sold everywhere—at a price so reasonable that it actually costs less than laundering!

KERFS ...to use when you want something dressier than Kleenex! Smart borders make Kerfs attractive enough for tea napkins as well as handkerchiefs.

Kleenex is a disposable tissue that is rapidly replacing handkerchiefs altogether. Highly absorbent... soft... downy... sanitary... economical... really superior in every way to handkerchiefs of cloth. Very convenient, too—you simply destroy after using. No self-infection, during a cold or hay-fever.

Kleenex is ideal for children. Also for removing cold cream and cosmetics.

KLEENEX disposable TISSUES
Germ-filled handkerchiefs are a menace to society!

CHIC EVENING DRESSES BOAST TRICKY, NEW SHOULDER-STRAPS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, JUNE 21.—Keep the shoulder straps on your evening dresses in some unusual arrangement—that is, if you want to follow the Paris idea. Among those few evening dresses that are worn without little jackets or capes, the fashion-approved gowns are those whose straps follow any but the classic straight-over-the-shoulder lines.

PRACTICALLY every dress designer in Paris has his own pet preference in this matter of shoulder straps. Vioneet uses narrow scarves of the material the dress is made of, fastens them first around the waist, then crosses them at the front, pulls them up over the shoulders, then crosses them in flattened-out formation at the back. Schiaparelli ties one strap in a floppy bow and leaves the other one flat. Lanvin crosses her straps suspender-fashion.

MOLYNEUX uses ribbon shoulder straps on some of his dresses. In the gown sketched, he uses silver lame faille ribbons in an unusual arrangement on a dress made entirely of silver lame. The band of ribbon at the outside extends to the waist, at the back; the other crosses the nape of the neck like a necklace.

THIS LAME dress, like many of the newer gowns, is in crepey weave that—despite its lame threads—gives a dull surface. The belt and bow are of the same fabric. The skirt is cut shorter across the front, in the manner of a slip of the dress fabric.

* * *

MAGGY-ROUFF'S neckline is marked by a chain of square links of strass—a device which provides a scarf that seems to flow out of the high front neckline. The dress itself is of iris chiffon. Its full skirt is floor-length.

We Should Not Let a Death Kill All Happiness

Is it "heartless" for a widow to fall in love and want to marry again; and have her in-laws a right to jump on her and tell her just what they think of her, if she gets such notions?

That's what's happening to Naomi. Three years ago she lost the husband she adored. Then she didn't think she could go on without him. The only thing that kept her alive was the thought that her babies needed her.

But now she has met a new man—a fine chap who adores the babies and wants her to marry him—and life has taken on a new meaning. Whereupon the Anvil Chorus is tuning up.

"It's an outrage!" they shout. "You're betraying poor dear Tom's memory. How can you?"

So poor Naomi doesn't know what to do.

ENCOURAGED BY CHILDREN

"Dear Miss Martin:

"Will you please help me?

"Three years ago I lost my husband very suddenly. I was almost prostrated, for I loved him deeply. I felt that I simply couldn't go on living without him, and I don't think I could have if it hadn't been for my deep love for my two babies, 4 and 7 years old.

"I managed to pull myself together because I knew that they needed me. If it hadn't been for them I think I would have just died myself, from grief, but they kept me going. I got a job and went to work to support them. I went to live with my husband's people, since my mother is dead and I had to have someone to look after them while I went at business.

"I thought I would never love anyone again, for Tom and I were so very happy together, and so devoted to each other, that it didn't seem possible that anyone else could take his place, or any place, in my heart.

RELATIVES OBJECT

"Well, I have found out that that wasn't true. I met a new man six months ago, and we began going out together occasionally, because I was lonely and so was he. Now he wants me to marry him, and I want to, although I don't feel the same deep love for him that I did for Tom. Nobody will ever take his place, I know. But I do care for this man. He is fine, clean and intelligent, and he adores the kiddies and they adore him.

"The thing that is worrying me is the attitude of Tom's people. They act as if I were committing some kind of a crime by wanting to marry again. They call me 'heartless,' and talk about my 'betraying Tom's memory,' and ask me 'how I could ever think of putting anyone else in his place.'

"Part of me thinks they are foolish, but again I think maybe they are right. I have thought it over until my head aches. I don't know what to do.

"This man can give me a home of my own again; and you don't know how much I miss mine. He can give my children more than I could ever give them, and he means a lot to me. Do you think I should marry him, or would it be heartless? Please help me. NAOMI."

LIFE GOES ON

Should you marry him? Why not, my dear?

Of course no one will ever fill Tom's place in your memory; and this new love isn't trying to. It has made a place for itself, and you will not be doing Tom's memory any injustice if you accept it. Life goes on, and you should go on with it. You can't be fair to either yourself or those babies by living in the past. Tom himself wouldn't want you to. If he did, it would be unfair and selfish.

So go ahead. Stop listening to croakers, and do what your heart tells you to do. Do your own deciding. Your life is up to you. The lives of your children are up to you, not up to Tom's relatives. If you can find a new richness in life for them and yourself, take it.

Remembering and honoring those who have gone on is a fine thing. But if such remembrance blots out all joy in, and duty to, those who still live, then it is a vice and not a virtue.

So don't let anyone meddle. Step out for yourself and let 'em howl! They'll get over it. If they don't, it's their bad luck, not yours.

Being Busy Is Best Tonic and Cure-All in the World, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Being busy is the best tonic and cure-all in the world.

The more you have to do that must be done the more you will find yourself able to do it!

Those who are busy do not have time to waste in self-pity.

And whether it is the routine of the office or the routine of the home, they learn to make each moment count in accomplishment of what must be done.

There is no such thing on earth as "having nothing to do," and those who complain of time dragging do not make the most of it.

Self-improvement can keep one busy if one need not be busy otherwise.

Chinese Reads Letter Found on Fence to Madge

For two or three minutes, that seemed as many hours, the wounded Chinese read the letter which his rascally countrymen had sent him, and then his eyes moved to the top of the paper, and he read it through again. When he had finished, he raised his eyes and directed a glance at Katherine standing near the bed.

"All right," Katherine said, "I'll go out of the room while you translate the letter to Mrs. Graham. But—with a hint of sternness in her voice—"I shall give you only five minutes. You must not tire yourself."

"All lite," he said laconically, and Katherine forthwith left the room, closing the door softly behind her. I saw her go, but I did not hear that practically noiseless closing. The ears of the Chinese were apparently more keen, however, for he nodded when she was safely outside the door, as if satisfied. Then he looked at me steadily.

"Bad mens want you plomise something," he said. "You plomise?"

"Tell me what it is, first," I said, and wondered if I were right in imagining that far back in those cavernous eyes there was a glint of amusement.

"All lite. They say,"—his eyes went to the letter again—"that they go away all but one man to watch, and they hurt nobody any more, if you do one thing for them."

He paused, and I said quietly: "And that thing is—what?"

"You promise when Lee Chow comes you fix so head man bad mens can meet Lee Chow in house or near here and talky talk."

"But how do I know Lee Chow will come here, or that he will want to talk to this man when he does get here?" I asked.

I did not imagine things this time. There was a distinctly reproachful glint in the staring eyes.

"I tell you before Lee Chow send word to me he come soon to this house," he said, and my thoughts went swiftly to the night when the call of the whippoorwill in the hedge outside had been so cleverly imitated by a messenger from Lee Chow, who had interpolated enough Chinese between the bird notes to make an understandable message.

"He say he come, and I say he want talk head man bad mens when he find out about box."

"Box!" I exclaimed. "What box?"

He stared at me disconcertingly.

"You know," he said with finality. "Box girl have from glandmother."

I had no such command over my muscles as was his, and I started distinctly.

There was no mistaking his expression now. Upon those inscrutable lips there was a smile, faint, but recognizable.

"You think nobody know girl have box from glandmother? Many peoples know. Bad peoples, good peoples. Lee Chow, he know all lite. He tell you everything when he come."

I knew better than to ask him what he knew about the matter, even if I had been willing to question a servant. There was a quiet dignity about this sick man, which told me that it would be useless for anyone to question him concerning what he evidently believed to be his master's business.

"You plomise show Lee Chow this letter when he comes?" he asked.

"Yes, I promise," I said. And the sick man closed his eyes for an instant, as if spent with utter weariness. When he opened them again, there was an imperative message in their depths.

"You please take letter. Keep safe till Lee Chow comes, then give to him. Today you tell somebody put white cloth on fence. They say do that."

He indicated with his eyes the letter before him.

"When they see white cloth they know you have letter and will show to Lee Chow. Then when Lee Chow come they ask you put white cloth on fence again, when he ready to talk head man bad mens.

"One man left watch. When he see white cloth he get head man bad mens. You plomise all this, and Lee Chow velly pleased with you. Lee Chow boss man velly pleased with you, too."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Office Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The discussion has arisen in our office as to the correct way for a business woman to announce her name over the telephone. We will very much appreciate your opinion in this matter, for it seems to be a question that has very strong champions on both sides.

1. Should a woman (employed by a firm) give her name to one with whom she is not acquainted as "Mary Smith," or is it preferable to use the "Miss Smith?"

2. Assuming that "Miss Smith" is correct when speaking to one whom you have not met, how should the name be given to a business acquaintance?

3. Is there any change in the rule when the woman speaking is "Mrs."? N.

1. "Miss Smith" is correct.

2. In the same way . . . "Miss Smith."

3. No.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A Warning Lead

The principle of the attacking lead, particularly against a no-trump contract, is to make the opening lead from a suit in which the most tricks can be established with the least drain upon the re-entries in the hand. When an attacking lead is made, it is usually the longest suit and either an honor or a length lead is used, depending upon the structure of the suit. When choosing between your own and your partner's suit, the partnership hands should be considered as a unit, and the lead should be chosen which offers the best chance for re-entries. This principle is sound on hands which have in them sound attacking leads. Much more frequently, however, when the opponents have reached a game contract in no-trump, with no adverse bidding, the opening hand does not contain a sound attacking lead. In such cases, a warning lead has been found to be very effective. This is a lead of a "top of nothing," which shows a worthless three-card or shorter suit and no long suit in the hand which can readily be established. Such a lead is a warning to partner that in establishing low cards to defeat the contract he is placed entirely on his own resources. The lead frequently gains and very infrequently loses.

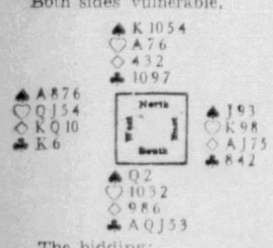
West—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
	1 N.T.	Pass	2 ◇ (1)
Pass	2 N.T. (2)	Pass	3 N.T. (3)
Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) East's hand does not contain either a sound Raise or a sound Takeout. However, he feels the hand may have something in it and wants to give his partner another chance.

(2) With 3½ honor-tricks, a bidding partner, who presumably holds a five-card suit that should be solid, and passing opponents, West feels there is a chance for game. In any event, after partner's response, his hand justifies another bid.

(3) Distinctly an overbid. East should let bad enough alone.

Bad as was the bidding, at one of the two tables where the hand was played, three notrump was made, due to the fact that North selected as his Opening lead his fourth best spade. West thus was enabled to establish his hearts, winning 2 tricks in spades, and also was assured of 1 trick in clubs, due to the fact that South held the club Ace.

At the other table, however, North realized the futility of attempting to establish his weak spade suit, and elected to make a warning lead, choosing the top of his three-card worthless suit—namely, the 10 of clubs. This trick the declarer won with the King, as South played the club 5. After winning the club, he could take 4 diamond tricks and 1 spade trick without permitting his opponents to regain the lead. However, West played it to his best advantage. After winning the diamonds, he established the hearts, so never lost a spade trick. Despite his correct play, he was defeated 1 trick, due to North's selection of an opening lead.

The bidding, however, at both tables, was too strong.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a two-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

South is dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 N.T.	Pass	2 N.T.	Pass
3 N.T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

What should West lead, holding:

♠ Q J 10 6 ♡ 9 4 ◇ 10 9 8 6 3 ♣ K 6

Answer: The spade Queen. In choosing between a weak five-card suit and a strong four-card suit, the latter, as a rule, should be preferred, unless it contains re-entries, such as A K x x, A Q x x, etc. With a spade opening, game will be stopped if partner holds a spade honor plus an outside trick and the club Ace is to the right of West. To save game with a diamond lead, partner must hold either great diamond strength or an extra re-entry with the club Ace in the South hand.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Eau de cologne is antagonistic to oily skin. Use it after the face has been bathed with soap and water. Pour a small quantity on a bit of Turkish toweling, scour the face lightly, rubbing the perfume away with a dry portion of the cloth. Eau de cologne is also an enemy of blackheads; it tears into the pores and ousts deposits of sebaceous fat and atmospheric dust.

Little slimps, who would put fat on their ribs and other places where a bit of adipose tissue fills the anatomical bill, will find it profitable to eat nuts and raisins, both of which are rich in calories. The quart of milk a day will do something, too, even more if cream is added. At bedtime, lap up a bowlful of milk and cream half and half, thickened with crackers. Watch the scales for the good news. It will be there.

Van Dyke, Guffey Will Control Committee Jobs

By MARK SHIELDS

CHICAGO, June 21. — Pennsylvanians to sit on the resolutions and rules committee of the Democratic national convention will bear the approval of State Chairman Warren Van Dyke and Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader, of Pittsburgh. The names of neither have been made public here and the rules committee member may not become known until the convention meets.

Mr. Shields

The resolutions committee member will be designated by Thursday, when an informal committee meeting will be held to chart a platform.

Sedgwick Kistler, on the opposite side of the political fence from Van Dyke and Guffey, has been asked by the national committee to provide someone for the resolutions committee, and will have both the name and the individual when he arrives here Thursday.

If the selection could be left to Kistler it probably would not be one of the Guffey-Van Dyke political faith. But indorsement must come from members of the state committee, and that body on the basis of its vote last month ousting John Collins as state chairman will follow the direction of Van Dyke and Guffey.

At the moment the member of the rules committee is of even greater importance that the platform carpenter. If it becomes advisable in the view of the Roosevelt people to drop the traditional two-thirds rule the movement will start with the rules committee, and it is to the advantage of Roosevelt to have someone from Pennsylvania as intensely in sympathy with him as are Guffey and Van Dyke.

Shouse Attack Seen As Roosevelt Test

The matter of the two-thirds rules is causing much speculation here. No one will say for publication that abrogation is being considered, though quietly there are a number of political wiseacres who contend that the Roosevelt effort to beat Jouett Shouse for permanent chairman is a trial balloon to determine how completely the Roosevelt managers can dominate.

Shouse himself yesterday said he did not believe there would be any attack on the two-thirds rule. Yet some of his friends are insistent that there will be. He has them in Pennsylvania, even among Roosevelt followers. Indeed, there are Pennsylvanians in the anti-Roosevelt camp, friendly to Shouse, who would not be disposed to fight Guffey vigorously on the presidential proposition if Guffey will agree to relax in an attack on Shouse.

That, however, is not apt to happen. It is almost a certainty that Shouse can be beaten by Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, in the permanent chairmanship fight, should James A. Farley, Roosevelt manager, decide to press the issue. Today he indicated emphatically that he would.

Whoever may emerge from this bitter battle as the party's presidential candidate, the Roosevelt forces will control every preliminary move. Each state has one member of each important committee, and the majority of the states are for Roosevelt. The New Yorker, therefore, should he ultimately be the nominee, will have to take full responsibility for the platform, including the party stand on prohibition.

Any one of the other seekers of the crown can escape that responsibility if nominated, and in public utterances modify to his own standards a pronouncement on any subject, as Al Smith did on prohibition in 1928.

Smith, incidentally, probably will be the New York member of the resolutions committee. That means the Raskob plan of liquor control will be placed before the convention. It would not be surprising to see Smith take the floor for a minority platform report on prohibition if he does not like the fashioning of the majority.

Fireworks Likely In Penna. Delegation

The rift within the Democratic party in Pennsylvania portends plenty of fireworks. Guffey is understood to intend establishing headquarters at a hotel other than that at which the delegation stops. He wishes to be with the Roosevelt managers. Van Dyke, of course, will remain with the delegation, and Kistler also will establish himself in the same lodgings as the delegates, according to present plans.

But there will, in effect, be separate headquarters within the same hotel. Kistler will locate a post of command from which the Smith, or anti-Roosevelt, movement within Pennsylvania will be directed. Van Dyke, in liaison with Guffey, will shepherd the Roosevelt shouters, and each will strive to engulf the handful of delegates who are on the fence.

County Chairman Dave Lawrence, of Pittsburgh, may stay with the state delegation, though he has made reservations in another hotel than that in which most of the delegates are to be quartered. Lawrence's reservation is in the hotel where Roosebelt has headquarters. It is possible this extensive layout will be turned over to Guffey, or it may be used for the Allegheny countians, over whom the chairman will keep a sharp watch.

The Pennsylvania situation is unique in the differences presented, with the state chairman and national committeeman on opposite sides of the fence and each trying to undo the other. It might be more easily understood had the Van Dyke-Guffey forces tried to unseat Kistler at the same time they put the boots to Collins.

Plans Bonus March By Veterans' Wives

GEORGE, 7

MRS. GEORGE HUEY

If Congress does not give the veterans their bonus before the end of the week, Mrs. George Huey, of 5445 Penn avenue, plans to lead a group of wives of the ex-service men to Washington, and if they will not go, she is going to hike it alone with her 7-year-old son. She said:

"The wives of the veterans already in Washington are as much in need as the men, and if immediate action is not taken on the bonus this week a group of veterans' wives will leave for Washington Saturday. And if the women go to Washington we will stay until the bonus is passed."

Mrs. Huey's husband has been in the capital two weeks, with mebers of the Trees Carlisle Post.

Mrs. Huey further pleaded that the women follow her saying:

"Why should we starve at home when we can help our husbands eat beans in Washington? They want thousands of men to come to Washington, why not thousands of women and children also? I hope the women will show these slow motion vets up."

CARNEGIE VOTE CASES DROPPED

Four Carnegie election cases resulting from a local contest in the general election last November, were dismissed when they came up for trial in Criminal Court late yesterday.

Presiding Judge Elder W. Marshall nol prossed the cases against Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen and Policemen Harry Kiesling and Fred Mathias. McMillen was charged with intimidating the election officers in the First District of the First Ward. District Attorney Andrew T. Park moved for the dismissal, saying there was no evidence to support the charge.

The two policemen were charged with remaining within 100 feet of the polls. It was pointed out that while this is prohibited by the law governing primary elections, it is not mentioned in the law on general elections.

Chief of Police Christ Kiesling was placed on trial charged with voting in a district in which he did not live, but Visiting Judge J. H. McCann, of Cambria county, directed a verdict of not guilty, on motion of Attorney Harry Estep, when it was not proved he did not live in the ward.

BUDGET SLASH URGED TO AID RELIEF FUND

Central States Conference Opposes Abandonment of Special Social Agencies

Attempts should be made throughout the country by welfare fund and community chest leaders to retain in their programs all of the character building agencies, even though it means that such agencies must make drastic cuts in their budgets, it was decided here yesterday. This was the consensus of opinion of the men who addressed the delegates to the central states regional conference of the Association of Comunity Chests and Councils held in William Penn Hotel.

Each of the speakers was of the opinion that to drop organizations such as boys' clubs, the scouts and the Y. M. C. A.'s would be to lose all the social advances that have been made within the last decade. However, it was decided that such agencies would be asked to cut their budgets to provide for only the actual necessary work.

DELINQUENCY FEAR

It was contended that if this phase of the work were abandoned entirely while greater efforts are made to cope with the direct relief needed, there would be an increase in juvenile delinquency and the unemployed boy or young man would be permitted to slip into despair through lack of useful and healthful occupation for his idle time.

Several persons who participated in the general discussion which followed an address on this subject, declared that it is time that the character building agencies are able to show in just what way their character building is effective. Arch Mandel, of Dayton, O., declared:

"Most contributors give money to community chests for the specific purpose that it will be spent for tangible relief to the needy and are unwilling that it should be used for the character building agencies. The character building agencies must get down to earth and show just how their work has results. They must abandon activities that can't be explained in that way."

SMITH OPENS MEETING

R. Templeton Smith, representing the local Welfare Fund, greeted the visitors and then turned the meeting over to Horace F. Baker, vice president of the fund. Baker presided for the morning session, introducing Benjamin E. Shove, of Syracuse, and Judge W. S. McLean, of Wilkes-Barre.

Leo Griffith was chairman during the afternoon, and the speakers were Fred M. Butzel, of Detroit; Ernest A. Pavior, of Rochester, N. Y., and A. V. Cannon, of Cleveland. Last night there was a dinner, at which the speakers were Allen T. Burns, of New York, executive director of the asssociation, and Fred W. Ramsay, of Cleveland.

Marathoners Here Near Dance Record

Pittsburgh's marathon dance has no unemployment worries—so says the press agent. The remaining contestants—16 couples and two girl soloists—are eating eight times a day, dancing 45 minutes out of every hour to the strains of music that drives away all worries, including the depression. The marathon passes the three hundred and twenty-seventh hour at noon today. The record is 533 hours.

Rum Found in Alley Kills Somerset Boy

SOMERSET, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—Drinking from a partially filled bottle of liquor he found in an alley proved fatal to Zigmond Tredko, 4, yesterday. He died in a hospital, physicians said, of acute alcoholism.

PATROLMAN MARTIN JOYCE EXAMINING THE BOMB-WRECKAGE AT 91 CONGRESS STREET

BOMBING LAID TO RACKET WAR

Warfare among small-time racketeers was blamed by police today for a bomb explosion which wrecked two buildings at 89 and 91 Congress street, and shattered windows in several buildings in Pittsburgh's wholesale drygoods district.

Dominick Bonnaccorni, 34, of 156 Elm street, lessor of the two wrecked buildings and three men found asleep on the second floor of 89 Congress street were arrested. Police reported discovering evidence of a small liquor cutting plant in the wrecked buildings. Bonnaccorni was fined $25 at a hearing today. The three lodgers were discharged.

Police said the three men, who gave their names as James Benny, 54; Pat Harrington, 23, and Sam Coras, 51, all without homes, slept through the explosion, although the report of the blast was heard within a radius of several blocks.

3 Hurt, 12 Shaken In Trolley Crash

An X-ray was to be taken today at Presbyterian Hospital to determine the extent of the injuries of John Lenningan, of 28 Waldorf street, North Side, motorman of a West View street car which crashed into a Perrysville avenue car, injuring Lenningen, C. O. Alexander, of near Bellevue, and J. A. Magee, of 261 Princeton avenue, and shaking a dozen passengers in both city-bound cars.

The collision occurred on a hill on Perrysville avenue near the city line. The Perrysville avenue car had been halted due to a broken trolley, witnesses said.

Democrats May Be in Chicago For Some Time

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We congratulate the Repubs on running off their feature picture in four days.

They had little to do and less to cheer. So each Republican orator sneezed and called it a speech.

We fear the Democrats will stay much longer in Chicago. Already the word has encircled the Jeffersonian frontier:

Let him announce:

And instead of banging the gavel on the desk, let him bang it on the speakers' beans.

HALEY TO TELL OF TUBE OFFER

J. F. Haley, Niles, O., contractor, whom C. C. Hamilton, real estate broker, quotes as his authority for an offer to sell the Wabash bridge and tunnel to the county for $2,550,000, a reduction of $450,000 from the best previous price, has conferred with County Commissioners and will state the authority for his offer at a meeting Thursday.

Officials of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway Company have declared that neither Hamilton nor Haley has any right to offer the railroad's property for sale. They see in the offer a plot to wreck the deal which has been under consideration by Commissioners.

Haley declined to be interviewed. Hamilton said he will undertake to prove at the hearing who the "rightful owners" of the bridge and tunnel are.

17 Fighting Cocks To Be Food for Needy

The 17 game cocks seized by Humane Society agents in a raid on a cock fight near Parkers Landing, Sunday, will be presented today to the Salvation Army and the Improvement of the Poor, it was announced late yesterday, after 37 visitors at the battle had been fined $20 and costs each by Alderman Porter Scott, of Butler.

2 FACE COURT ON JURY 'FIX' COUNTS

By E. C. SYKES
Staff Correspondent.

BUTLER, Pa., June 21.—A veiled offer of "$300 or $500" was made to John M. Vogely, Butler meat dealer, he testified today in the trial of W. D. McBride and Charles Flick, charged with conspiracy and embracery in connection with the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline, of Pittsburgh, and his former supplies director, B. L. Succop.

A statement alleged to have been made to state police by McBride was admitted in evidence. It detailed a conversation between McBride and Flick in which Flick was described as saying to McBride that "he and a lawyer had received a proposition from someone in Pittsburgh that would mean some money for them and also for me if I could arrange to see prospective jurors and arrange for them to return a verdict of not guilty in the Kline case, in event they were called.

Vogely, on the second panel of jurors summoned for the Kline trial, testified McBride had approached him on the street and later in his shop "with this remark:

"I'll bet you can make $300 or $500 out of it."

Vogely testified he replied:

"Not me."

The defense sought to show that the proposal was only a joke. Judge Thomas Watson, presiding, ruled the second conversation was not a joking matter.

Sgt. Emmett J. Donovan, of the state police, testified when officers went to Flick's home they obtained a typewritten list of jurors during a scuffle, while members of the family sought to prevent them from getting possession of the list.

Jacob Marcus, Pittsburgh produce dealer, listed for trial today on a charge of perjury as a result of the Kline trial, will not be tried until September, District Attorney E. M. Negley said, because of the illness of Marcus' counsel, John Frankel.

Young Menjou Faces Charge of Murder

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(AP.)—Held under $10,000 bond, Harold L. Menjou, 20, adopted son of Adolphe Menjou, screen actor, will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of murder and driving while intoxicated.

The complaint against Menjou was signed by Motorcycle Officer Perry Jones, of Manhattan Beach, who said he was chasing Menjou's speeding automobile when it overturned, killing the young man's sweetheart, Marjorie Gauthier, 16.

Jean Harlow to Wed Bern, Film Magnate

LOS ANGELES, June 21.—(AP.)—Jean Harlow, the screen's platinum blonde, is to be a bride again. The 21-year-old actress has announced her engagement to Paul Bern, film producer, and said today the wedding will be Friday or Saturday.

It will be the first marriage for Bern, who gave his age as 42. Miss Harlow, whose real name is Harlean Carpenter McGrew, was formerly married to Charles F. McGrew, 2nd, of Chicago.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 21.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Everybody asks, "Who are the Democrats going to nominate?" or "Will the Democrats nominate a good man?" Where do they get that "good man" stuff? The Democrats haven't got anything else. And if you don't believe it you just listen in on the radio next week.

Will Rogers

Flew through Fort Worth, Tex., the other day and home over the splendid American Airways. Texas is sending more folks to Chicago than they did to Houston. Special trains, bands, all for Little Jack Garner. The West out this way is hollering for Ritchie. It's going to be a great show. Eleven hundred real delegates. And not a postmaster in the hall. Nobody knows what any one of 'em is liable to do.

Yours, WILL.

DECEMBER 22 LONGEST DAY OF YEAR

Earth Moves Slower As Summer Starts, Astronomer Says

Astronomy offers a brain twister for today, the first day of summer, according to Dr. Frank C. Jordan, director of the Allegheny Observatory.

The problem as he states it is:

"What is the longest day of the year, today or December 22?

At this time of the year the earth is revolving slower in its orbit than it does during the rest of the year, while about the end of December the earth is moving faster in its orbit. It would be only natural to think that since the earth is moving faster on December 22 that that day would be the shortest of the year. Such is not the case.

EARTH'S POSITION JUNE 21 ST.
30.2 SECONDS LONGER TO MOVE THIS DISTANCE ON DEC. 22 ND.
MERIDIAN

Drawing by Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Staff Artist.

TODAY THE LONGEST DAY? . . . OH, NO, DECEMBER 22 IS!

Dr. Jordan said:

"June 21 is only the longest "daylight" day, with one and one-half seconds more sunlight. December 22, measured from noon to noon is more than 24 hours long. The excess is 30.02 seconds. It is the longest day this year.

"About December 22, when the earth is moving fastest in its orbit, the sun in apparently shifting eastward a little more than the average in its orbit. The earth must, therefore, move further on its axis to catch up with the sun. Thus the gain of 30.02 seconds gives us a longer day."

APPOINTMENTS MADE AT M. E. CONFERENCE

Pastors Given Assignments; Preacher Retires After Service of 51 Years

With appointment of ministers for the coming year, the one hundred and ninth annual Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church closed in the Bellevue church late yesterday. Many pastors were re-appointed to their present charges.

Several well-known Pittsburgh district clergymen figured in the appointments. The Rev. R. B. Urmy, who for six years was pastor of the Bellevue church, and later editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, was returned to Bellevue. The Advocate was ordered discontinued by the general conference in Atlantic City as an economy measure.

Dr. Urmy succeeds the Dr. John B. Magee, who goes to Seattle.

PASTOR RETIRES

The Rev. James M. Thoburn, who has been pastor of the Mary S. Brown Memorial Church, Squirrel Hill, was voted retirement after a service of 51 years. He becomes supply pastor at the Smithfield Street Church, and is succeeded at the Squirrel Hill church by the Rev. W. M. Baumgardner, of Freedom. The Rev. J. E. Wagner, of Mt. Lebanon Church, changes pulpits with F. D. Esenwein, of Greensburg.

The temperance committee in its report did not, as was expected, refer directly to the Republican party's stand on prohibition, but some comment was made on it. The report said:

"We view with concern suggestions of state control of liquor, as this has been tried and found wanting. If the national government shall confess inability, how hardly shall the states profess superior power?"

In a debate on the conference committee's report, the Rev. Dr. J. S. Payton, pastor of the Asbury church, Pittsburgh, said the chief reason for agitation against prohibition was the desire of wealthy men to avoid payment of higher income tax and place the burden on the shoulders of the man who drinks.

NEWSPAPERS ACCUSED

Newspapers were charged with spreading false propaganda in the cause of the anti-dry side and scored for partisan attitude on the liquor question by the Rev. John C. Matteson, chairman of the committee.

Appointments involving changes in pastorates in addition to those named, follow:

ALLEGHENY DISTRICT—W. S. Trosh, district superintendent. Ben Avon, G. L. Powell; Conway-Glenfield, William Brundrett; Freedom, R. C. Ehrheart; Freeport, T. H. Andrews; Smithfield-Walnut Hill, J. M. Betts; Somerset, C. A. Tracy; Webster-Greenock, C. R. Wick; West Newton, E. C. Lindsey.

WASHINGTON DISTRICT—B. R. McKnight, district superintendent. Clarksville, G. S. Buhan; Colliers, Frederick Spielman; Cove-Weirton, G. M. Conner; Donora, George Grant; Dormont, J. D. Piper; Follansbee, W. L. Wilkenson; Fredericktown, G. E. Buhan.

Greensboro, H. E. McNeely; Houston - Meadowlands, F. L. Teets; Jefferson-James, L. M. Bonner; Jollytown, T. H. Mahon; Liberty, J. W. Black; Midway, S. H. Greenlee.

Knoxville, C. W. Campbell; Spencer, R. R. Griffiths; Roscoe-Howe-Coal Center, G. A. Federer; Swartz, F. B. Grimm; West Alexander, C. L. Peacock.

SPECIAL APPOINTMENTS—H. A. Baun, of Butler; J. M. Helmstadter, of McKeesport, and A. D. P. Miller, of Pittsburgh, were named trustees of Allegheny College at Meadville.

Threaten to Deport Mt. Lebanon Suspect

William Wilkinson, 21, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, identified at Mt. Lebanon Police Station yesterday as robber of three stores—in Braddock, Elizabeth and Homestead—today faced the possibility of deportation by federal authorities.

The suspect was arrested in Mt. Lebanon with an allegedly stolen automobile while riding with Philip Durante, of Tripoli street, and Lena Marshoff and Pearl Shagey, both of Mt. Lebanon. The two girls were discharged after being questioned by Mt. Lebanon police.

GIRL, 6, KILLED BY POLICE AUTO

Laverne Palmer, 6, died in Pittsburgh Hospital late yesterday of injuries suffered a short time before when struck by a Woods Run patrol auto taking 18 prisoners to the county workhouse. The mishap occured at Nineteenth and Main streets, Sharpsburg.

Mrs. Ida Hodgkiss, 23, of 1702 East street, was in a Steubenville hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the hip as a result of an automobile accident near Weirton. Her son, Edward, 4, suffered a fractured right leg and William Bell, 19, of New York, a broken shoulder. Samuel Hodgkiss, 24, driver of the machine, who said it skidded after getting out of control, was uninjured.

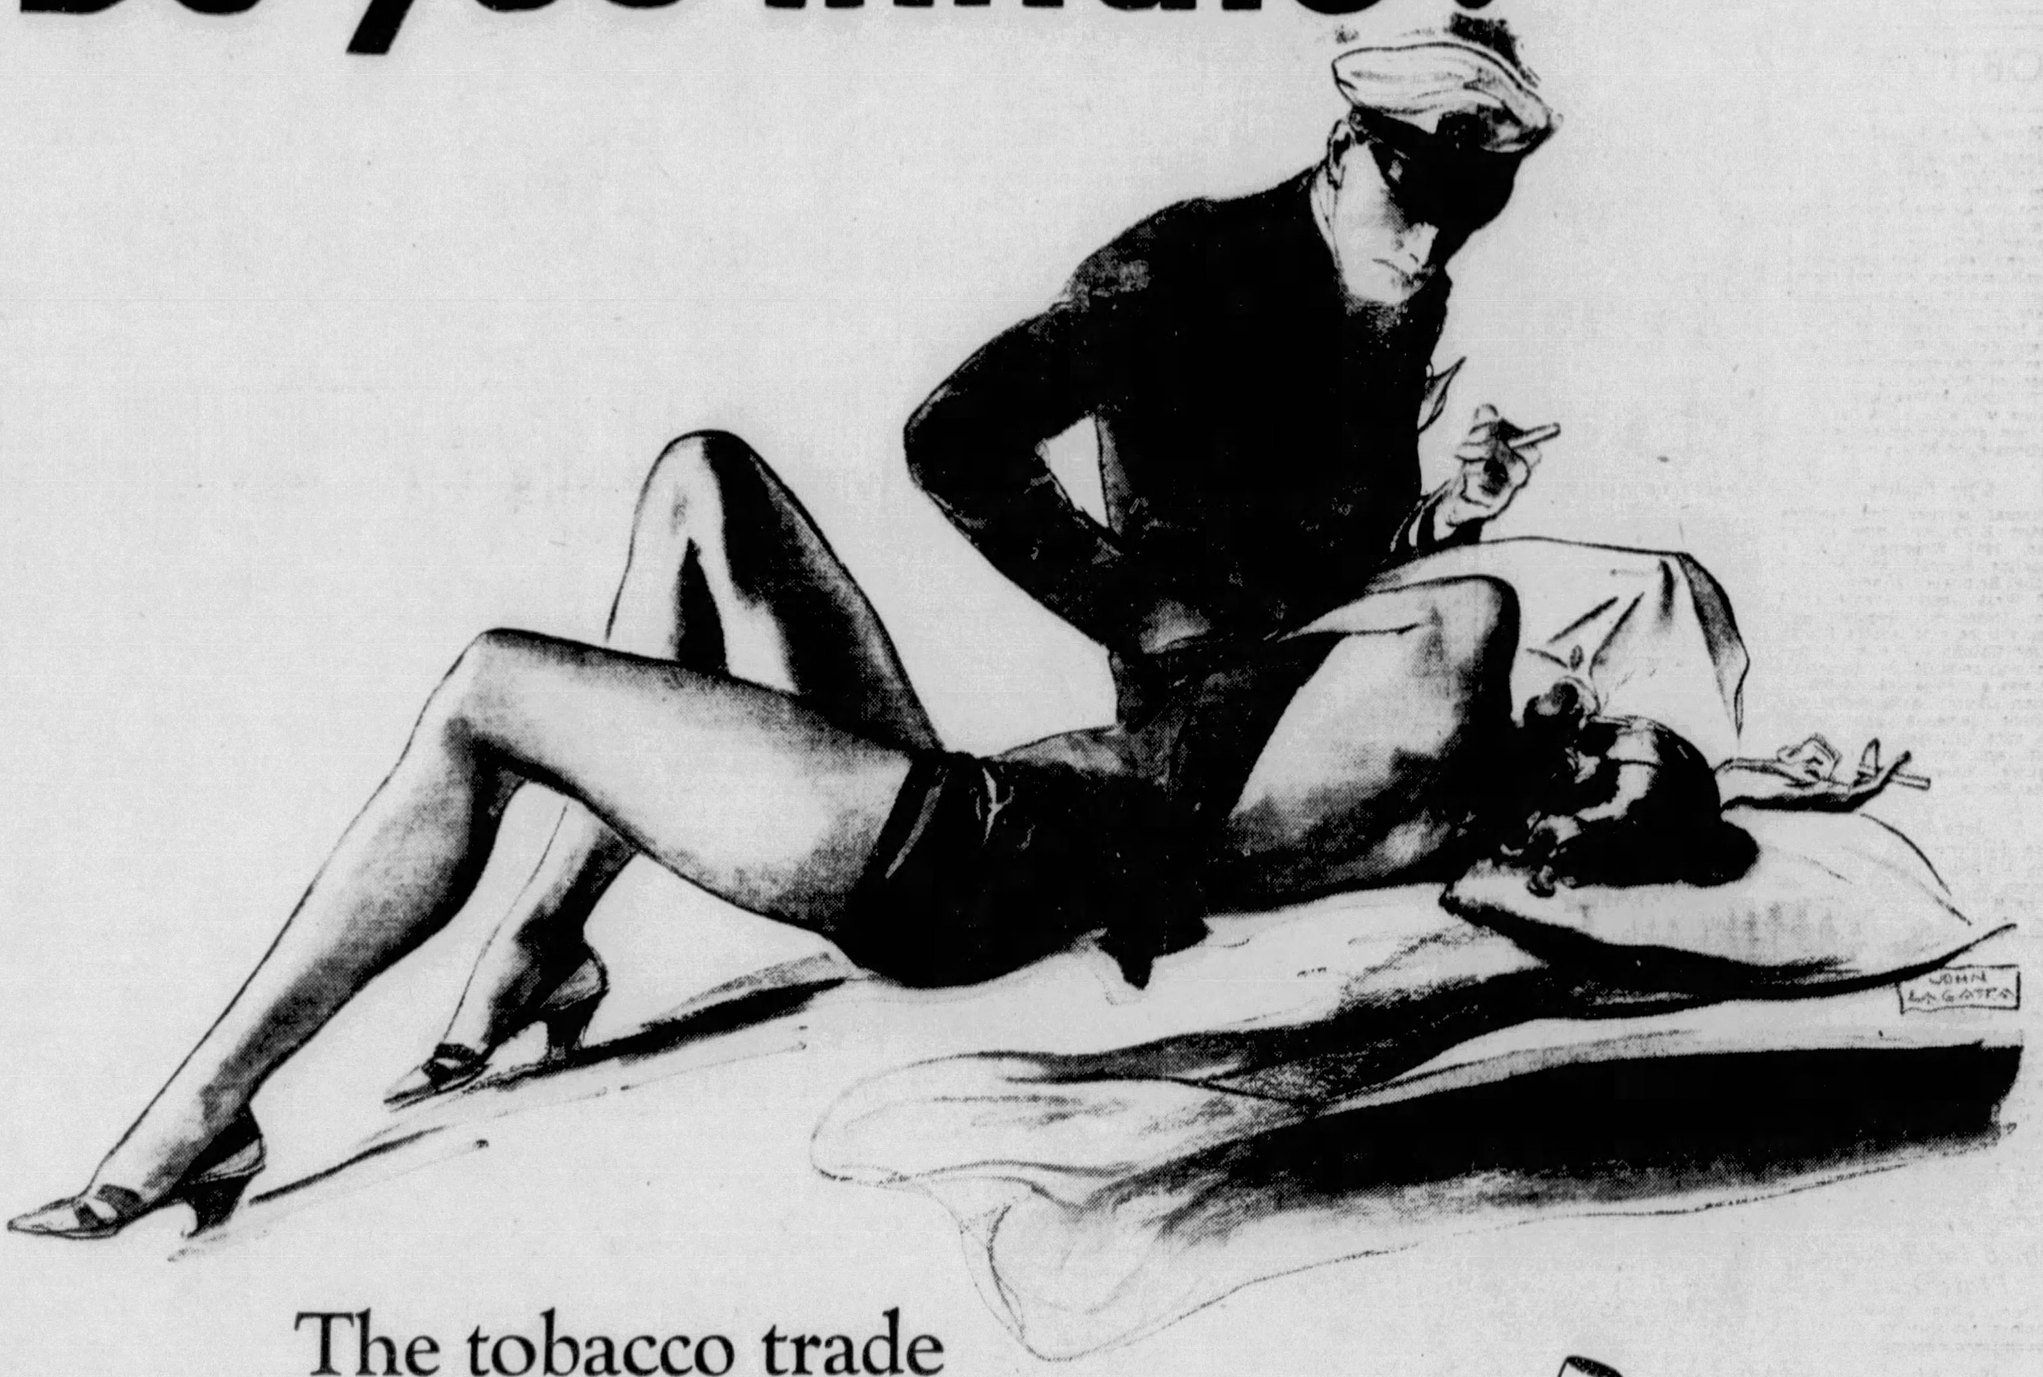
Do you inhale?



The tobacco trade is at "sixes and sevens" on this embarrassing question

DO you inhale? This simple question caught the cigarette trade by surprise! "Why bring that up?" they asked. "Why don't you let well-enough alone?"

But "well-enough" is not enough for Lucky Strike! The subject of inhaling is vitally important . . . for every smoker inhales knowingly or unknowingly. Every smoker breathes in some part of the smoke he or she draws out of a cigarette!

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike dares to raise this vital question... because Luckies' famous purifying process removes certain impurities concealed in every tobacco leaf! Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Remember—more than 20,000 physicians, after Luckies had been furnished them for tests, basing their opinions on their smoking experience, stated that Luckies are less irritating to the throat than other cigarettes!

COMING To End RUPTURE Troubles

Representatives of W. S. Rice, Adams, N. Y., originator of the Rice Method for the self treatment of rupture at home, will be at the Henry Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa., from Monday morning, June 20, to Saturday evening, June 25, to give a personal and free trial of his method to all sufferers who want to end rupture trouble and truss wearing.

No matter how bad the Rupture, how long you have had it, or how hard to hold, no matter how many kinds of trusses you have worn, let nothing prevent you from getting this FREE TRIAL. Whether you are tall and thin, short and stout, have a large abdomen, whether you think you are past help or have a rupture as large as your fists, this marvelous Method will so control and keep it up inside as to surprise you. It will so restore the parts where the rupture comes through that soon you will be as free to work at any occupation as though you had never been ruptured.

For the lady callers a woman expert, thoroughly trained, will assist in the demonstrations in private apartments. The trial will be absolutely complete and thorough without a penny of cost. You owe it to your own personal comfort and safety not to miss the great free demonstration. It is a real opportunity to learn how you may be done with chafing trusses and the danger, suffering and trouble your rupture has caused.

The hours are 9 to 12 noon, 2 to 5 p. m. and evenings 7 to 9. Remember the dates and place, Pittsburgh, Pa., Henry Hotel, from Monday morning, June 20, to Saturday evening, June 25.

Locked in Hotel Wife Says in Suit

Emelienne J. Davis, 424 Shady avenue, told Judge S. J. Snee in her divorce suit that she was locked in a hotel room at a convention by her husband, William C. Davis, Troy (N. Y.) osteopath, because he was jealous of her. She said that a few months after marriage Davis frequently beat her, once breaking her nose. They were married in November, 1925, and lived in Troy, and she came to a brother's home here in 1929, she said.

Etna Water Bill Placed at $14,113

A compromise settlement for water used from 1927 to 1931 by the Borough of Etna has been reached, City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt informed Council today.

Several months were required to decide how much water was used and the amount due the city. First Assistant Solicitor Thomas M. Benner told Council the bill has been set at $14,113.10, including interest. The borough has agreed to pay $5,900 on account.

Urges Operators Hired With Trucks

The city will be saved considerable damage costs in connection with construction projects on which trucks and other equipment are rented, if a new ordinance proposed by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang is passed by Council, he said today.

Lang asks authority to include operators when equipment is hired. When city employes run the hired cars the municipality is responsible for damage. If operators were included the liability would fall on the lessor, Lang said.

Truck Crash Victim Wrongly Identified

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 21.—A case of mistaken identity was revealed when the body of the driver killed in a runaway truck crash on Frankstown hill 10 days ago, that killed two other persons, was shipped to Philadelphia. Originally identified as Norman Ballard from the auto license card which he carried, the body was unclaimed. Yesterday word was received here to send the body to Philadelphia as it was the body of James Brown, also of Philadelphia, who had been using Ballard's auto card.

Dr. J. G. Ricketts Awarded Divorce

A divorce was granted Dr. John G. Ricketts, 53, of 280 Colonial drive, Mt. Lebanon, from Josephine Hart Ricketts, 37, of 185 Belonda street, by Judge S. J. Snee in Common Pleas Court. Ricketts charged unfaithfulness.

Divorces were granted Beulah Myers from Albert Myers, Edith M. Simpson from Guy Simpson, Joseph A. Schell from Rose A. Schell, and Marion Knight from Edward H. Knight.

Hurt by Fire Escape Ladder, Files Suit

John W. Hubbard, as owner of the Linn Building, Washington avenue, Swissvale, was named defendant in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by James B. King of Swissvale, who said that as he passed the building March 28 the suspension ladder of an iron fire escape dropped on his head causing brain concussion. He asked $20,000 damages.

The city of Pittsburgh was made defendant in a suit by William A. Nelson, who charged that the wheel of his automobile dropped in a manhole because of a loose cover on West Liberty avenue April 10, last, forcing the car against a curb.

CHANCES FAVOR MAX AS FIGHT NEARS

THE CLOSE APPROACH of a fight in which Jack Sharkey is to be a principal does not lessen the uncertainty as to how the former sailor will perform. He's always a question mark until it's all over. So the fact that the second Schmeling-Sharkey battle which William F. Carey will stage in Long Island City is now only a few hours off does not remove any of the doubt about the erratic ex-gob, and for that reason the opinion sticks that the chances are going to favor victory for Schmeling and the retention of his crown.

W. F. Carey

Schmeling is a better fighter than he has been conceded to be. Max is greatly improved as a boxer, he can take a terrific pounding and keep going to the point where he generally outwears an opponent, he can fight well in close where Sharkey is not at his best, he can punch hard enough to stop anybody, and he has determination, confidence, coolness and perfect condition in his favor. A pretty promising combination where the opposition is uncertain. Sharkey CAN win, but is too erratic to warrant a guess that he WILL. It looks like Schmeling because Sharkey can't be depended on to get the best out of his superior Queensberry equipment.

ONE OF PITTSBURGH'S outstanding athletic figures of all time passed in the death of Bob Peck. Selected as all-America football center by Walter Camp in 1915 and 1916, his last two seasons at Pitt, and the first player in this district ever to make the mythical team, Peck made a brilliant individual record, and also was prominent as a part of the greatest team ever developed in this part of the country.

There is little question that Pop Warner's immortal eleven of 1916, surpassed all others in Western Pennsylvania college history. Besides Peck as captain and center, it included Sutherland and Soppitt and Seis at guards, Thornhill and Seidel at tackles, Herron and Carlson at ends, Jim Morrow at quarterback, Hastings and DeHart at halfbacks, and McLaren at fullback. Among the reserves were Lougler, McClelland, Easterday, Stahl, McNulty and Hilty.

IN PECK'S TWO great years, 1915 and 1916, the Panthers did not suffer a defeat. In 1915 they made 247 points to 26 for their opponents, and in 1916 they made 255 points against 25 for their foemen. Opponents included such teams as Penn, Syracuse, Navy, Carlisle, Carnegie, W. & J., and Penn State.

Of Peck in 1916, Walter Camp wrote: "Peck at center has for the last two years been a menace to any attack. Remember in this connection that Pitt's only poor game in 1916 was the Navy game, and that was due to the muffing and fumbling of Warner's backfield, a malady that no line can prevent. Peck did the lion's share of the damage to Syracuse's attack in a game that blighted a potentially strong team that had made an enviable record the year before."

DESPITE THE BIG lead gained by the Yankees in the American League race, Walter Johnson is not conceding any pennants to them. He does not rate them as a great club, and doubts that they can keep up their present pace. Johnson says the Yanks are unsteady in fielding, and will not continue to get the sensational pitching that has favored them, thinks Dickey and Lazzeri will slump in hitting, and that Ruth and Gehrig can be stopped by heady hurling. "When the bats of Ruth and Gehrig are stilled," says Walter, "McCarthy has just an ordinary ball club, which will crack up as a result of its own abnormal speed." Johnson adds that the A's can't win the flag unless Foxx, Grove and Simmons get some assistance from their mates. He predicts the Senators will be heard from as soon as Alphonse Thomas starts to pitch winning ball.

Jimmy Foxx

WHATEVER IT WAS that lifted Jimmy Foxx into his sensational hitting stride of 1932 from an average of .291 and a total of 30 home runs last year, the fact remains that he has a chance to accomplish what has been considered the impossible by beating Babe Ruth's all-time record of 60 homers in 1927.

There's nothing fluky about Foxx's terrific clouting. His current slugging frenzy is the talk of the American League circuit. Short fields and close fences are playing only small parts in his mounting homer total, already almost equal to the number he made during all of 1931. Many of his smashes would clear any wall, and he has been sending them over stands never cleared before.

EVEN IF HE doesn't break Ruth's record, a difference of 14 years in age is figured to enable Foxx at least to beat out the Babe in the race for this year's honors, though the Yankee veteran so far is giving him a close race.

There will be glory enough for Foxx in the latter achievement if he gets away with it. But at that, isn't the real wonder the fact that Ruth at 38 is still able after all these seasons to keep pace with a 24-year-old rival? When the Babe broke into the big show in 1914, Foxx was only 6 years old.

THE LACK OF Olympic Games enthusiasm that has been in evidence in the United States and some other countries, due to the times, did not extend to Japan. While America was falling woefully short in the drive for $350,000 to defray the expense of competition, raising little more than one-tenth of that sum and finding a cut in representation necessary, Japan subscribed $150,000 for its teams without a bit of difficulty. As a result, that country will have the largest foreign representation in the games, no fewer than 200 athletes. Its equestrian team is already here, having arrived two full months ahead of the Olympic opening, and only the American team has had a longer period of preparation in Southern California.

ONE PRETTY SAFE bet to come out on top in his specialty in the Olympics is Bobby Pearce, rated the greatest of modern scullers, who will represent Australia though now residing in Hamilton, Ont. He hs won practically every amateur rowing title in the world.

Rowing in 300 races since 1926, Pearce has never been defeated in any contest started on even terms. His only reverses have come in handicap affairs in which he gave away many seconds. Bobby says he wants to defend his Central States title in St. Louis this week, repeat in the Olympics later, and win the Diamond Sculls again in 1933 before retiring.

IN THE OPINION of Jim Rice, Detroit rowing coach who has been training the 26-year-old Australian star, there isn't a sculler in the world who can touch Pearce. "I've seen them all from Ed Hanlan on," Rice declares, "and I think Bobby is the best since the days of Hanlan, Jake Gaudaur and Bill O'Connor.

"The man who can beat Pearce has not yet learned how to pull a scull. But Bobby ought to be good. His father and his grandfather were both champions of Australia. He is a champion by heritage."

Pat McDonald

SKIPPING FROM THE young to the old in athletics, how about Pat McDonald, weight-throwing perennial, as a standout among the marvels still laughing at time? The old giant, weighing around 300 pounds, is 54 but far from being ready to quit, though a quarter of a century has gone by since he won his first national championship. On the contrary, the distance he is throwing the 16-pound hammer shows him to be no idle threat as a candidate for one more Olympic team. He fouled by only a fraction of an inch on one throw last week that measured 162 feet 11 inches. McDonald is the last of the old whales, the famous group that included John Flanagan, Matt McGrath and Pat Ryan.

TEUTON RULES 6-5 FAVORITE OVER TAR

Cloudy and Warm

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—Cloudy, warm weather, with only an outside threat of showers, was predicted by the Weather Bureau for the 15-round heavyweight championship fight tonight between Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—For glory, honor and comparatively little cash, Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey clash in a 15-round heavyweight championship bout in Long Island City tonight.

William F. Carey, president of Madison Square Garden, which is promoting the match in the new outdoor arena on Long Island, predicts gross receipts in the neighborhood of $400,000. Even that figure, staggering as it is in these times, seems trifling when viewed from the point of view of the million-dollar "gates" of the Dempsey era.

The odds continued at 5 to 6, with Schmeling a favorite, although some betting commissioners were quoting 11 to 10 and take your pick. Odds against a knockout by either man were 3 to 1.

FIGHTERS AT PEAK

Both Schmeling and Sharkey came down from their training camps in upper New York state in excellent condition. Sharkey has been the more impressive during the training grind, but the experts pointed out that Schmeling never has looked any too good in a gymnasium. He needs real competition to look his best.

The Teuton has come far since that June night two years ago when Sharkey battered him around for three rounds and then fouled him into the championship in the fourth. Then he was a green, game youngster, a powerful puncher with his right hand and possessed of all the stamina in the world.

Now he is a champion in fact as well as name, a punishing hitter with either hand, a much more elusive target than he used to be, and still gifted with amazing endurance.

But if Schmeling is spurred on not so much by a desire to retain his title as to achieve vindication for his somewhat inglorious victory in 1930, there is desperation behind Sharkey's challenge.

SHARKEY'S LAST CHANCE

The Boston Tar simply can't afford to lose. He is getting only 10 per cent of the receipts, hardly enough to pay for his training expenses, but he wants the title. This may be his last chance. Time after time has been knocking at the door to the heavyweight throne room, only to find it closed to him through his own erratic performances.

Although the bowl will seat 71,872 persons, not more than 55,000 or 60,000 are expected tonight. There may not be that many even though there are more than 40,000 seats at from $2 to $5 plus tax. Top price for choice ringside positions is $23.

Weighing-in ceremonies at the New York State Athletic Commission offices were slated for between 1:30 and 2 o'clock, eastern daylight time. The referee and the two judges were to be named this afternoon, but their identities were not to be revealed until ring time.

The title bout, scheduled for 10 p. m., was to be preceded by one four-round preliminary and four five-rounders. The New York American's milk fund was to share in the net profits to the extent of 25 per cent—with a guarantee of $10,000.

SHIELDS, VINES AND ALLISON VICTORS

WIMBLEDON, England, June 21.—(AP.)—Frank Shields, of the United States Davis Cup squad, with only one day's practice, today won his opening match in the English tennis championships, defeating Pierre Grandguillot, of Egypt, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Ellsworth Vines, United States singles champion, won his second match of the tournament, but was carried to four sets before he managed to eliminate H. S. Burrows, of England, 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Wilmer Allison, another of the American Davis Cup team, had to go five hard sets to defeat G. E. Tuckett, unranked English player, in the second round, 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

John Van Ryn, Allison's doubles partner, had easier sailing with C. H. Kingsley, well-known English player, triumphing, 6-3, 7-5, 2-6, 8-6.

Sidney B. Wood joined the American advance, winning his second round match with I. H. Wheatcroft, of England, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1, 6-3.

The women's singles got under way this afternoon. Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall, the former Eileen Bennett, defeated Miss N. M. Lyle, of England, 9-7, 4-6, 6-0, in a bitterly contested match.

Other international stars who gained the third round were Fred Perry, of Britain, who defeated his compatriot, H. F. David, 6-4, 6-3, 5-7, 6-1; Jean Borotra, of France, who defeated C. N. O. Ritchie, of Britain, 6-4, 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, and Harry Hopman, of Australia, who advanced at the expense of C. E. Malfroy, of New Zealand, 6-3, 6-1, 6-2.

PECK FUNERAL PLANS SET

By JESS CARVER

A grief-stricken group of former school and teammates gathered at the Pennsylvania Station this morning to receive the body of Bob Peck, Pitt's famous all-America center of 1916 and 1917 as it arrived here from Culver, Ind., where the former gridiron star died Sunday.

Funeral services will be held from the Samson funeral home tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Sarber, of New York, former minister of the Sixth Presbyterian Church here, who performed the deceased's marriage ceremony, will read the burial service.

Former teammates and associates will act as pallbearers, including Dr. H. C. Carlson, Pitt's basketball coach; Dr. John B. Sutherland, head football coach; Andy Hastings, former backfield star; Allen Collingwood, student manager of the 1914 and 1915 varsity elevens; Don Leonard and William Stuaffer, S. A. E. fraternity brothers, and Bob Grove.

Members of the Pitt Varsity Letter Club will attend the funeral services in a body. They will assemble at the Samson funeral home shortly before 3 o'clock.

LOCAL COLLEGE NETTERS LOSE

HAVERFORD, Pa., June 21.—(AP.)—Twelve seeded stars and 20 other top favorites swept through to the third round in the first day's play of the National Intercollegiate tennis championships at the Merion Cricket Club yesterday.

Not an upset marked the first two rounds, although two young stars who have risen recently fell before the superior play of seeded veterans. Jack Tidball, of the University of California at Los Angeles, defeated William Jacobs, of Pitt, and Bryan Grant, of North Carolina, downed Edward Sutter, of Tulane.

Two other Pittsburgh district netters were beaten, Elbert Lewis, of the University of California at Los Angeles, downing William O'Loughlin, of Pitt, 6-3, 6-1, and Elliott Loughlin, of Navy, eliminating William Thompson, W. and J., 6-1, 6-2.

VAULTER HONORED

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 21.—(AP.)—The Lionel De Jersey Harvard studentship at Emmanuel College, Cambridge University, for next year has been awarded to Oscar Sutermeister, of Kansas City, Mo., a member of Phi Beta Kappa and intercollegiate pole vault champion in 1931. The studentship is given annually in memory of the only descendent of John Harvard ever to attend Harvard University.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Sana Mouronseff, Ruth Challis, Dorothy Anderson and Jean Rose pried the lid from the women's singles competition in the forty-fourth annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships with first-round victories on the Stanton Heights courts this morning.

Miss Mouronseff defeated Edna Patterson, 6-0, 6-3, while Miss Challis was taking the measure of Dorothy Miller, 6-3, 6-3, and Miss Anderson was advancing at the expense of Mary Dilworth Edwards, 6-0, 6-0. Miss Rose won by default when illness kept Helen Kauffield from reporting for her match.

Men's singles battling was to be resumed, and men's doubles contesting inaugurated this afternoon, but women's and mixed doubles will not get under way until tomorrow.

Brilliant man-to-man competition looms from 4 o'clock until past the dinner hour, as fourth-round contestants seek passage to the quarter-finals, into which Sam Harbison, Allegheny Country Club ace and 1931 West Penn runner-up, led the way yesterday by dint of speedy straight-set wins over Dr. Chick Cochrane, Edgewood luminary, and Bill Harter, youthful Greenville aspirant.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

CLEVELAND, June 21.—Having nothing else to do, I think I'll beat the other experts to it and name my All-America ball team now.

For pitchers, select myself. I was good back in 1906, and, with prices down to that level, I am the ideal man for the place. With me in the box they would need nobody else. Instead of a second pitcher, I'd prefer to name my own umpire.

For my infield, I pick the St. Louis Cards. A chain is as strong as its weakest link, and, as long as the Cards have the best chain system in baseball, they cop the place.

With me pitching and the Cards infielding, I would need for my outfield Faith, Hope and Charity. They get the place. I am omitting my All-America catcher to save expense.

Hans Roberts Finds Maxie Non-Committal

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Max Schmeling, to his friends, is non-committal about the outcome of his battle in defense of the world heavyweight title against Jack Sharkey in New York tonight. His trainer, Max Machon, thinks Max will win by a knockout.

Hans Roberts, local welterweight boxer, who, incidentally, is back in training and ready to box again, returned home yesterday from a week-end visit with Schmeling at his Kingston (N. Y.) training quarters. He was an amateur boxer along with Schmeling in Germany before coming to this country.

Hans Roberts

WON'T PREDICT OUTCOME

Maxie was delighted to renew their acquaintance and invited Roberts to return for a long chat following their first meeting, at his workout on Friday. In answer to queries from Roberts, whose real name is Riecke, Schmeling refused to predict the outcome of the bout, merely saying:

"I am in fine condition and will fight my best. I can do no more."

Roberts satisfied himself by observing Maxie in his workouts that the champion is in fine fettle, and he is stringing along with him to win, despite Maxie's own refusal to claim victory in advance of the battle. He says Trainer Machon confidently expects Max to stop the challenger.

Bowl Bouts Off

A downpour at 6 o'clock last night caused the Meyers Bowl to postpone its Kid Chocolate-Johnny Farr show until tomorrow night. The fact that the Schmeling-Sharkey heavyweight battle is on the air over WCAE and KDKA tonight, beginning at 10 o'clock, caused the club to jump two nights, which was possible with the Greenlee Field arena not availing itself of its Wednesday night date.

Ernie Sesto will referee a card of amateur bouts to be held by the St. Peter's A. A. in its new outdoor arena in the St. Peter's School grounds, back of the North Side Police Station, Friday night, for the benefit of the poor of the community. Sandy Seifert and Arnold Thornburg will be the judges.

Graham McNamee and Charles Coe will do the broadcasting of the Schmeling-Sharkey fight from the ringside, with a German sports scribe reporting the battle over the W8XK short wave station to Germany.

Johnny Jadlich will defend his world junior-welterweight title against Tony Canzoneri, from whom he won it, at the Phillies' Park, Philadelphia, July 18. Jack (Kid) Berg, another former holder of the crown, meets Young Firpo, Lew Massey boxes Joey Costa and Sammy Dorfman opposes Eddie Cool in the other 10-rounders.

Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion, and Chico Cisneros, who box Lee Sala and Jackie Wilson, respectively, in the two feature 10-round bouts at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night, both are booked for eight-round supporting battles on the Johnny Risko-Mickey Walker card in Cleveland the following night. Freeman is to box Roy Williams and Cisneros is billed with Johnny Farr, who boxes Kid Chocolate here tomorrow night. That's a grand mixup, with either Cleveland or Pittsburgh winding up the loser.

The Meyers Bowl is planning a double windup for next Monday night with Tony Herrera meeting Eddie (Kid) Wolfe in the main event and Battling Gizzy opposing Lew Feldman in the other 10-rounder.

NOTICE, OFFICIALS

All officials working in local high school games must be registered in the P. I. A. A. C. Lawrence Walsh, supervisor of athletics in the department of hygiene, will have all examination papers available for the officials Friday. He may be reached at 225 Administration Building.

PIRATES LOSE HURLING DUEL TO DODGERS

BROOKLYN, June 21.—Unable to hit Pitcher Van Mungo, the Pirates had to taste a 2-1 defeat yesterday as they battled the Dodgers in the second game of the series. Bill Harris was just about as effective as the 20-year-old fast-ball sensation, but Bill made one offering too good for Al Lopez in the fourth round with two out and none on and the catcher put his team out in front with a homer.

Harris showed courage in the seventh when with two out and Suhr on third he slapped a single to center to force a deadlock. In the home half of the inning, however, Harris was nicked for a single with two out and Danny Taylor on second. Speedy Dan sprinted home with the winning marker.

Mungo and Harris had so much stuff the opposing teams made only six hits each. The Pittsburgh defeat lost the Buccos ground in their attempt to overtake the runnerup Braves, who were victorious, but they did not fall any farther away from the pacesetting Cubs, who also were defeated.

Fight Results

At Cincinnati—Ted Granam knocked out Buck Everett, 4 rounds; Mickey Glass knocked out Charley Boian, 2 rounds; Cy Nebs and Denny Day drew, 6 rounds.

"I am ready, in the best condition of my career, and expect to win."

This was the champion's message. Sharkey said:

"By tonight I'll either be a champion or a bum. This is my big chance, and I don't intend to muff it. I was beating Schmeling the first time, and I'll do it again."

Among the spectators will be at least one Governor, Wilbur Cross, of Connecticut, for whom Carey said he had made a reservation. Mayor James J. Walker, of New York; Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, and Mayor Anton Cermak, of Chicago, as well as former Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, are other notables for whom reservations have been made.

STALE GAS IS FEEBLE GAS
fresh GAS PACKS POWER
• • • GET GULF

Gulf gets it to you fresh

Only FRESH gas packs full power. Because, as gasoline stays in storage, it deteriorates. The lighter parts—volatile parts that make possible easy starting—float slowly away.

As gas grows stale, too, a physical change occurs. So the longer gas is stored, the more power elements it loses—the weaker it gets. Even slightly stale gas can't give you all the power you pay for.

And the staler gas gets, the stickier it gets—the more apt it is to foul your motor. The anti-knock value decreases, too!

Long has the problem of gasoline deterioration troubled the entire petroleum industry. Gulf has long sought ways to overcome it—and now announces a system that assures you of getting FRESH, FULL-POWERED gasoline. Here's how . . .

Gulf makes the best gasoline that can be produced—and takes out of that gas certain elements called unsaturated hydrocarbons, which have been found to cause early deterioration. Hence, Gulf gas stays FRESH longer.

Next, Gulf gives that FRESH-MADE gas no chance to get stale—it rushes it to you in a hurry.

To do this, Gulf has located its huge refineries in many sections of the country—so that each of its 45,000 Gulf filling stations is close to a source of FRESH gas. Fast trucks speed FRESH gas to Gulf pumps every day.

BEARS OLYMPIC HOPE

CALIFORNIA CREW WINNER AT 'KEEPSIE

It looked very much like a prophecy, instead, as a result of the smashing victory of the Golden Bears over six Eastern and one far Western rival last evening in the four-mile varsity championship race of the Inter-collegiate regatta.

So far duplicating their triumphant maneuvers of 1928, when they swept unbeaten to world championship heights in the Olympics, the Californians now turn to the American Olympic try-outs, to be held July 7, 8 and 9, on Lake Quinsigamond, and a prospective battle with Yale, among others.

OLYMPIC FIELD STRONG

There will be a strong fleet assembled for the Olympic tests, including, at least two of the losing boatloads yesterday, Washington and Syracuse, as well as Wisconsin, Columbia's graduate eight and the Penn A. C.

Over the Olympic distance of 2,000 meters (approximately one mile and a quarter) California barely turned back the Elis four years ago.

Over the four-mile route yesterday, California registered one of the most decisive varsity victories witnessed on Ol' Man River in a number of years. The Bears failed to touch their own course record, due to a wind that shifted up stream, but administered a pretty sound beating to Cornell's powerful boatload, as well as Washington, Navy's defending champions and the highly-rated but extremely disappointing Syracuse eight.

LEAD FROM START

Rowing a front race from the crack of the starter's gun, under good conditions, California had anywhere from 2½ lengths to a full 20 lengths over the rest of the fleet. The nearest thing to a thrill in the entire four miles came when Cornell's crew made a gallant bid to come from behind and overhaul the Bears within the last mile and a half.

The victory of the Syracuse freshmen, stroked by James O'Hearn, of Hudson Falls, N. Y., was the third for the Orange in this event in the past four years.

Varsity, four miles—California, 19:55; Cornell, 20:03 4-5; Washington, 20:14 1-5; Navy, 20:19 4-5; Syracuse, 20:24 2-5; Columbia, 20:33 4-5; Pennsylvania, 20:40 1-5; M. I. T., 21:12 3-5.

Junior varsity, three miles—Syracuse, 15:41; California, 15:45 1-5; Navy, 15:59; Cornell, 16:12 4-5; Columbia, 16:40 2-5; M. I. T., 16:49 2-5.

Freshmen, two miles—Syracuse, 10:59; Navy, 11:05 4-5; Cornell, 11:16 3-5; California, 11:17; Pennsylvania, 11:24 3-5; Columbia, 11:25 1-5; M. I. T., 11:31 2-5.

Consensus of Scribes Names Max as Winner

By FRANK G. MENKE
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 21.—Max Schmeling will win his fight tonight with Jack Sharkey, is the consensus of sports writers of newspapers taking International News Service.

Most of those who pick the German to retain his bauble do so not so much because they reckon that Schmeling has superior skill, or a more powerful punch, but because they reckon that the temperamental, eccentric Sharkey will have his morale destroyed by Schmeling's poise and actually beat himself.

'TOSSUP'—KECK

Harry Keck, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph:

"Sharkey has the class to win, but remains same old doubtful quantity. Schmeling is the phlegmatic, dogged type, which makes other men beat themselves. It is a tossup. I like Sharkey on his ability, but, after being crossed up on him so often, I even hesitate to pick him to lose."

James W. Schlemmer, Akron (Ohio) Beacon-Journal:

"Schmeling has the edge over Sharkey in mental poise, is stolid and phlegmatic and should beat the flighty, impulsive Sharkey decisively."

Bill Farnsworth, New York Journal:

"I think Schmeling is a cinch and may knock out Sharkey in 12 rounds, due to the fact that my staff men, Hype Igoe, Bill Corum and Burris Jenkins, are picking Sharkey. They can hoodoo anybody."

Roger Pippin, Baltimore News:

"Sharkey is the better boxer, just as stiff a puncher, and I think he will win decision."

T. von Ziekursch, Philadelphia News:

"Somewhere during the fight Schmeling will land his right hand on Sharkey's jaw. If Sharkey can take it, he is likely to win. Otherwise, Schmeling will retain the title."

Joe Mohar, Albany (N. Y.) Times-Union:

"Schmeling."

MATTER OF TEMPERAMENT

"On form, Sharkey is Schmeling's superior. But Sharkey is so temperamentally constituted that he must beat himself, as well as his opponent."

Kirk Miller, Washington Times:

"Sharkey should win, if he doesn't blow his topper. I wouldn't bet a dime on him because he is as changeable as a chameleon. Schmeling is a better fighter than rated."

Eddie Geiger, Chicago American:

"Max Schmeling will win. He is stronger, has youth and the greater punch. He is greatly improved. Sharkey has seen his best day. He is an in-and-outer. There is no assurance he won't lose his head, as in other fights. I do not look for a knockout."

Dan Taylor, Cleveland News:

"If the fight ends within seven rounds I think Sharkey will win. If it goes the full distance, Schmeling is my choice because of youth, heart, physical condition and endurance."

Ed Bang, Cleveland News:

"If Sharkey can dishearten Schmeling in the early rounds he can win by decision. But it is difficult to tear into a heart of iron, such as Schmeling's."

HE LIKES SHARKEY

Sandy MacDonald, Duluth Herald:

Walter Graham, Springfield (Mass.) Republican:

Paddy Jones, Hamilton (Ont.) Herald:

"I'll pick Schmeling."

Sid Zill, Los Angeles Herald-Express:

"Picking Schmeling. Sharkey's reputation is such that if I had a million I wouldn't bet on him."

G. H. Schertwitz, San Antonio Light:

"Sharkey—because of the law of averages. It's about time a man with his ability comes through in an important fight."

Lou Marsh, Toronto Star:

Tom Akers, San Diego Tribune:

"Much improved Schmeling should defeat Sharkey. He apparently is better than when he defeated Stribling. And in the Stribling fight he was a great improvement over the Schmeling that met Sharkey in 1930."

SEES SHARKEY'S FINISH

Pat Frayne, San Francisco Call-Bulletin:

"Schmeling should stop Sharkey this time, and then perhaps we will get some young talent among the beasties who will revive boxing. Sharkey has been kept up there for five years by beefs and fouls, but he should be ready for his finish now."

(Doss) Parsons, Denver Post:

"Sharkey is my choice. I feel Schmeling cannot forget the beating he took from Sharkey the last time and thus the pressure will be on him."

Ed Danforth, Atlanta Georgian:

Al Santero, Oakland (Cal.) Enquirer:

"I like the old formula, 'A champion until he's beaten.' It should hold good for this fight. I'm tagging Schmeling to win—possibly by a knockout."

Ralph Wagner, Omaha Bee-News:

JACK BETTER RINGMAN

Frank Cantelno, Corriere D'American (New York):

SENIORS PLAY TOURNEY AT OAKMONT

By TOM BIRKS

Robert Smith, of the Greensburg Country Club, is defending his Western Pennsylvania senior golf championship in the annual tournament over the Oakmont Country Club course this afternoon. Playing with him as a partner is Dr. George T. Gregg, of the home club, former champion.

Richard Long, also of Oakmont, is playing in the tournament for the first time.

The Allegheny women clinched the Section I championship at Butler yesterday by scoring six points to Butler's one. Stanton Heights and Pittsburgh Field Club were the other winners.

R. Hagan and Horace Brand won the four-ball, best-ball competition, staged in the afternoon, with a 69.

Carrick and Fifth Net Stars Win

A Carrick and a Fifth Avenue player turned in triumphs yesterday in the city scholastic tennis tournament in the senior division. Wolf, of Carrick, eliminated Helm, of Perry, 6-2, 6-4, and Miller, of Fifth, downed Woodill, of Westinghouse, 6-2, 6-1.

In the junior division, Callen, of Perry, defeated Hartman, of South Hills, 6-2, 8-6, and Lambert, of South Hills, downed Logan, of Allegheny, 8-6, 6-3. Cooper, of Herron Hill, eliminated Snagon, of Perry, 6-3, 0-6, 6-2.

PLAY FOR TITLE TODAY

The Homestead Aces and Carrick Eagles play on the Carrick High School field this evening for the first half championship in the West Penn league. Each team has lost only one game. The Homestead Grays lost to the Crawford Stars at Beaver Falls last evening, 4 to 2, with Russell and Wells hitting home runs.

Big Fight Coverage

Among other features, Gene Tunney, former champion, will present his impressions of the outcome and of the merits of the principals.

Pent-Up Buying Sure to Bring Heavy Demand

By B. C. FORBES

"ALL GOD'S chillun want things!"

For quite a while we have been using up more than we have been buying. Henry T. Ewald, Detroit advertising genius, thus captions this message:

Mr. Forbes

"Amid all the pessimism over business conditions, there is one hidden but powerful force at work which will carry America upward again as surely as the seasons unroll: the growing human wants and needs for products of all kinds.

"The volume of pent-up demand may be measured by the following record of consumer purchases in four typical industries during 1931 compared with the more normal year of 1926:

"1. America's investment in food products during 1931 was one-and-a-half billion dollars less than in 1926.

"2. In men's and boys' clothing, expenditures were less than half those of five years ago.

"3. In residential building, last year's record was less than a third that of 1926.

"4. In the automobile industry, always looked upon as an index of consumer buying, orders were less by a million and a quarter cars than in 1926.

"'Down—down—down' has run the gloomy song of consumer purchases. But meanwhile 'up—up—up!' has run the cheerful song of potentian demand.

"The vital need is for good advertising—definitely geared to the mood and manners of today—well planned, well directed, well sustained, that it may create a strong identity and an indelible preference for the particular product.

"Who will rule our various industries when this pent-up demand breaks — old champions or new!"

THE FINANCIAL week has opened rather cheerfully. Faith in America seems at last rising both abroad and at home. May it last!

WHAT KIND of a world are students graduated from college about to enter? What ideals are urged upon them?

After reading many exhortations, these impress one as typical examples:

"The great mass of the people have lost confidence in their leaders and most of the leaders have lost confidence in themselves. Speaking generally, we have today no positive convictions, no flaming enthusiasm, no ideals for which great sacrifices are appropriate and natural. Such courage and idealism cannot be maintained unless they are rooted in religion."

And this:

"Among our intellectuals one cannot be thought mentally competent unless he radiates despondency, denies the possibility of progress and sneers at efforts for self-determination. The sentiment has been cultivated that individual effort is futile and that it is not intelligent to have hope or aspiration . . . It requires mental and spiritual fortitude not to disavow personal responsibility."

Also this:

"The basic and initial element of weakness in our prosperity was the fact that it was structurally unsound. A false objective had been set as representing the supreme and almost exclusive value of man's ambitions, purposes and strivings.

"This objective was visoned in purely materialistic terms: the amassing of wealth as rapidly as possible in a manner such that the maximum of returns might follow a minimum of labor . . . The supreme values of life should be recognized as the values that are ends in themselves, and they are resident not in the external world of getting and gaining, but in the foundation of individual character itself."

HAVE YOU noticed that adversity has sweetened some, soured others? One business man who has had his full share of reverses, tells me:

"I do my best each hour of each day. When closing time comes, I try to do no more worrying until next morning."

Isn't this an ideal time for us to remember that a coward dies a thousand times, a brave man only once?

Receiver Sought For Algoma Steel

TORONTO, Ontario, June 21.—(AP.)—Appointment of a receiver and manager of the property and assets of the Algoma Steel Corporation, Ltd., was asked today by the Trust and Guarantee Company.

Grand-Silver Chain Receiver Appointed

WILMINGTON, Del., June 21.—(AP.)—James P. Winchester, Wilmington banker, was appointed receiver yesterday of the F. & W. Grand-Silver Stores, Inc., which controls some 200 five-cent to one dollar retail stores in the United States and Canada.

The decree, handed down by Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott, states the corporation is solvent to the extent that a fair valuation of assets exceeds liabilities but insolvent in that it cannot meet maturing obligations.

Reserve Members' Loans Increased

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The statement of weekly reporting member banks on June 15, shows increases for the week of $375,000,000 in loans and investments, $128,000,000 in net demand deposits, and $343,000,000 in government deposits. Time deposits decreased $23,000,000 and borrowings from reserve banks $9,000,000. Loans on securities totaled $4,828,000,000 an increase of $30,000,000. All other loans aggregated $7,687,000,000, a rise of $88,000,000.

New Haven to Issue $25,516,000 of Bonds

BOSTON, June 21.—The New Haven Railroad is applying to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $25,516,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds, to be dated July 1, 1932, and maturing July 1, 1972, and bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent.

KANSAS WHEAT FARMERS HIT

DODGE CITY, June 21.—The week ended June 18 was hot and windy and favorable for ripening wheat, but weeds and green heads multiplied in the fields. All this threatens to make the harvest expense much greater. Week-end rains of heavy proportions were unfavorable for plant progress.

The drastic decline in wheat price leaves the farmer aghast. Those who are able, are plowing up wheat fields that promise six and eight bushels. The green weeds and foliage will put the soil in fine condition for cropping.

Although harvest is only a few days away, farmers are not pulling their combines out of the sheds, and are making no preparation towards putting their machinery in order to make the harvest.

If prices remain at present levels, or even 10 cents higher, probably 1,000,000 acres, or more can never be harvested, as the farmer will be unable to pay harvest expense out of the very low yields and price.

Cuba's Half Year Sugar Exports Up

HAVANA, June 21.—Exports of Cuban sugar from January 1 to June 11 totaled 1,199,189 long tons, compared with 1,006,711 tons during the same period of 1931. Available stock in Cuba on June 11 totaled 393,406 tons against 615,305 tons on June 13, 1931.

BASIC POINTS

TO BE CONSIDERED IN ESTABLISHING

A LIFE INSURANCE TRUST

3. Two Types of Life Insurance Trusts

THERE are two general types of Life Insurance Trusts, namely the Unfunded and the Funded.

The Unfunded Life Insurance Trust combines first, an adequate amount of Insurance on your life made payable to a corporate Trustee, and second, a written contract between you, as the insured, and the Trustee, setting forth in detail how the proceeds of your policies shall be managed and invested, and how the income and principal of the fund shall be distributed to your beneficiaries. Under this plan, you continue to pay the premiums on the Insurance policies.

The Funded Life Insurance Trust adds one other element. You deposit with the the Trustee cash or securities in an amount which will yield sufficient income to pay the annual premiums on the Life Insurance policies placed in your trust, and the Trustee pays the premiums from this fund as they fall due.

By establishing a trust of either of these types, you are assured of expert, conservative management of your estate according to a plan which is still sufficiently flexible to provide for unexpected emergencies.

The officers of the Trust Department of The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh will be glad to discuss with you, your attorney, and your insurance counselor the drawing up of a Life Insurance Trust Agreement suitable to your needs. If you would like to have complete information on Life Insurance Trusts, we suggest that you send for our new booklet entitled, "The Life Insurance Trust Plan of Conserving and Distributing Your Life Insurance Estate."

STOCK MARKET TRADING STILL APATHETIC

List Develops Heavy Tone After Dividend Omission By American Smelting

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—The stock market all but stood still again today.

A handful of stocks were bid up a little in the first hour, but these gains were soon lost, and a slightly heavy tone developed after omission of American Smelting's preferred dividends. Bonds maintained a good undertone, but this market has not developed sufficient strength to help shares.

At the start, a few issues such as American Telephone, Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Air Reduction rose about a point, and United States Steel pushed up ½, but these advances were about lost. Telephone actually sold somewhat under yesterday's close. American Smelting common lost a point, as did Western Union, and American Smelting 7 per cent preferred dropped a couple of points. The bulk of the list was virtually unchanged.

The cessation of important liquidation during the past fortnight has led some market theorists to believe that the March-April-May cycle of liquidation, the seventh of the bear market, has been completed, and that a rally canceling roughly half of that loss should be in order. But market theory has left traders rather cool, in view of the number of unusual conditions prevailing and the likelihood that prices may not follow a conventional pattern.

The Lausanne conference and the Democratic convention are probably attracting more attention in financial quarters than anything else at present. What effect either may have upon the markets, however, remains problematical. Some observers anticipate little from the war debt conferences until after the German elections July 31, with the feeling that any definite solution may be deferred until after our own elections.

American Smeltings omission of its preferred dividends was not unexpected, of course, in view of the unprofitable position of the copper industry. Howe Sound cut its dividend to 10 cents from 25. Furthermore, the action of the silver market has reflected skepticism over the prospects of results in the near future from the agitation to restore the value of that metal.

The weekly freight car loadings figures, showing an increase of roughly 54,000 cars over the Memorial Day week, in which loadings declined about 73,000, were somewhat disappointing, and tended to take the edge off the firmness of the carrier issues. Railroad executives, however, are understood to be working on further drastic economies which may tend to improve the railroad situation after a period of months.

Match Sale Hearing To Be Held Friday

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—Federal Judge John M. Woolsey today fixed Friday as the date for argument on a motion of the Irving Trust Company, as trustee in bankruptcy for International Match Corporation, Kreuger unit, for an injunction against the sale of 250,000 shares of common stock of the Diamond Match Company.

The stock is held by four banks as collateral for a $3,800,000 loan. The banks, which are defendants in a suit brought by the trustee to recover the stock, are the National City Bank and Bankers Trust Company of New York, Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company of Chicago.

DEBT BURDEN ENHANCED BY PRICE SPASM

Labor Bureau's Price Index Off 33% From 1929 Peak; Purchasing Power Raised

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 21.—Exactly three years have elapsed since business in the United States reached a peak and then began to recede.

Self-perpetuating deflationary processes were released, and until they are reversed by fundamental management policies, the future remains uncertain and insecure.

Mr. Rukeyser

The character of the economic disease is symbolized by persistent pressure against the price structure. From the low level prevailing a year ago, commodity prices at wholesale according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics index, have receded by another 12 per cent. The decline from the peak in 1929, attained in the month of June, exceeds 33 1-13 per cent.

PROGRESS MADE

The precipitous drop in the price level—the sharpest that has even taken place from a stable peace time level—has in effect raised the purchasing power of money by one-third. Accordingly, it has upset the calculations among debtors and creditors in all existing long term loan agreements. The price spasm has added to the real burden of all debts, personal and governmental.

Recently the price structure has given indications of approaching an equilibrium. If the price level can be held, great progress would be made in laying the foundations for business recovery. Businessmen have been paralyzed by the fear that operations would result in losses from a decline in the market worth of inventories. Instead of merely passively hoping for price stabilization and then partial recovery, management should assure such a contingency by deliberate efforts, which should include credit expansion and temporary props to the price structure through emergency measures.

Among the latter, the proposal to authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to offer to take over from banks loans against agricultural staples at prevailing prices would in effect fix minimum prices for cotton and wheat. Then the banks could encourage recovery by offering to make long-term loans to mills who would stock up with raw materials at prevailing low prices, which are below the cost of production.

DISPARITY SHOWN

An indication of the moronic mind behind the stock ticker is to be found in the recent spread, sometimes amounting to five points, in the simultaneous selling prices of American Tobacco common and American Tobacco B, with the latter quoted at the higher price. Intrinsically American Tobacco B is worth less than the common, which is the same in every respect, except that it enjoys the voting privilege which was denied to the "B" stock. Inasmuch as the franchise is not of much practical value to the small investor, outside stockholders began to favor the "B" stock because some years ago it was quoted at a slightly lower figure than the common. Gradually demand shifted mainly to the "B" stock, and has resulted in the present absurdity, under which the theoretically slightly inferior stock sells at a premium above the superior stock. As long as this disparity exists, it is good business for investors to effect a saving by shifting from the "B" stock to the common. This technical advice is given without prejudice to the investment merit of the company, for both the common and the "B" share ratably as to assets and earnings.

John Maynard Keynes, British economist, in his new book entitled "Essays in Persuasion" denies the money trust bogey. Speaking of bankers he says:

"It is necessarily part of the business of a banker to maintain appearances and to profess a conventional respectability which is more than human. Lifelong practices of this kind make them the most romantic and the least realistic of men. It is so much their stock-in-trade that their position should not be questioned, that they do not even question it themselves until it is too late. Like the honest citizens they are, they feel a proper indignation at the perils of the wicked world in which they live—when the perils mature; but they do not forsee them. A bankers' conspiracy! The idea is absurd! I only wish there were one! So, if they are saved, it will be, I expect, in their own despite."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 21.—Interest in the bond market was at a low ebb today and, outside of a few special issues, price changes were unimportant. German government loans managed to hold a large part of their following despite the general apathy of traders in the domestic categories. The Reich 5½s were up 1½ points at one time and the 7s advanced 1. These bonds showed moderate reactionary tendencies later, however, apparently due to profit taking.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

BURKE 'CLEARS' G.O.P. DRY PLANK

Says It Gives Antis What They've Asked for 6 Years, Yet Guards Dry Rights

James Francis Burke, general counsel for the Republican National Committee, today asserted that the Republican plank on prohibition grants anti-prohibitionists what they have been demanding for six years, yet does not deny to ardent prohibitionists the two outstanding principles for which they stand.

Mr. Burke said that he had been asked to explain "in simple terms" the prohibition plank. He said, in part:

"Since many so-called 'wets' seem to be dissatisfied with the Republican platform, let us face the facts:

"What have they been demanding for the past six years?

"First—That they be given a chance to determine by their votes whether the Eighteenth Amendment shall continue in force, or whether it shall be repealed and forever taken out of the Constitution.

CONVENTIONS PPROVIDED

"Second—That they shall be permitted to express their wishes through state constitutional conventions and not through state legislatures. They have felt that as legislatures are elected on a multiplicity of issues throughout the country, the prohibition question might be confused with or subordinated to other questions, and thus a clear-cut verdict prevented. Furthermore, they have felt that if the matter were to be submitted to state conventions with no other questions before them, the answer must be definite one way or the other.

"The platform grants both these demands in the plainest English. Consequently, if we triumph in November the people are assured of an opportunity to vote on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, through the medium of state conventions free from all other issues.

"The third question was whether, in the event of repeal, there should be some reasonable substitute to take the place of the present rigid prohibition amendment, or whether we should be left groping in the dark through blind controversy for a number of years to come.

"Let us be practical. We must proceed under the Constitution. Nothing can be done without the consent of three-fourths of the states.

"Since 13 states can prevent repeal of any character, it is absolutely necessary to offer some substitute to which 36 states are likely to agree if we are to make any progress toward solution.

STATE'S RIGHTS

"Ardent prohibitionists struggled at Chicago to give Congress the right to prohibit as well as regulate the liquor traffic throughout the country.

"The more moderate school of thought declined to grant Congress the power to prohibit, declaring that power belonged to the states alone. At the same time they believed that the logical thing to do was to lodge in Congress the power to provide a general regulation of the traffic which would be uniform throughout the country, rather than have from four to 48 conflicting liquor laws agitating the country, the states to regulate the details.

"Therefore the platform gave Congress the power to regulate, but denied it the power to prohibit.

"Thus the three great principles demanded by the so-called "wets" have been granted.

"On the other hand, two outstanding principles for which the most ardent prohibitionists stand are not denied them, to wit:

"First—The right of any state to continue prohibition within its own borders by the vote of its own people.

"Second—The right of all prohibition states to the protection of the federal government from outside shipments into dry states and other kindred abuses.

"And finally, the drys have the same right as the wets to vote on the question as to whether present conditions are to be continued or terminated."

PACT ON DOGS HELD ILLEGAL

The city's agreement with the Animal Rescue League for impounding stray dogs has been in direct violation of the Wallace act, City Controller James P. Kerr told City Council today.

The agreement with the league in past years has been verbal, with the organization billing the city monthly for services rendered. A study of the law revealed, Kerr said, that this method violated the Wallace act, which governs city contracts.

The letter accompanied a request for a contract ordinance, submitted by Public Safety Director James M. Clark, in which permission was asked to advertise for bidders for the service. Clark asserted the dog-catching matter will be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder after being duly advertised, as required by law.

Both Tom and Dwight Seek To Take Lynn to Lunch At Same Time

CHAPTER XII.

"Mr. Dwight asked me to bring you to one of his parties," remarked Lynn, subsiding.

"He did? Well," said Jennie, slinging the bone with accuracy into the scrap basket, "that's the best news I've heard since the stock market crashed and show girls lost their sables. How about catching a little sleep?" But it was a long time before Lynn slept. Jennie's idiocies were barbed. Absurd, impossible to think that Dwight was personally interested in her, Lynn Harding. Why should he be, with all the world from which to choose? She liked him, frankly enough. But she hadn't a significant thought for anyone but Tom.

Perhaps she'd been foolish to think this evening so important. It had gone to her head a little. It had been so different from anything she had ever experienced. If Dwight had made pretty speeches to her it was because his profession was partly speech-making, and because he said just such things to every woman he met. Tomorrow night she would see Tom again and tell him about the party, and for a little while she would remember it with pleasure and then she'd forget it; and that was that.

She smiled, and suddenly fell fathoms deep into sleep.

Blocks away, David Dwight was walking about his library. He had never felt less like sleep in his life.

A pretty girl.

An intelligent girl.

That didn't mean much, either; he had known women of signal brilliance. And after a while they, too, had bored him.

But little Lynn—there was something tremendously appealing about her; something fresh and radiant and untouched; something quaintly serious. But she laughed with spontaneity, and her eyelids crinkled and there was an unexpected dimple in her left cheek.

NOT IN HURRY

He hadn't been so interested in a girl in—months. Or was it years?

What about this sex business, anyway? he thought vaguely. Stupid or ugly or beautiful or mysterious, depending upon how you viewed it and when you viewed it. Before and after, like the advertisements. Indefinable, no matter how much print was wasted on it. You met someone—and that was that. Unreasonable, unreasoning.

He would see her again.

He must walk as delicately as Agag. There was no immediacy about it. When a man had left the careless twenties and the casual thirties behind him he knew the value of making haste slowly, of savoring the moments. This girl, in her dusky pink frock, was like spring. And a man learned to value spring, to cherish it, to extract from it the last drop of heartbreaking fragrance, the last atom of star dust.

He thought briefly of Sarah. Frowned. Sarah might make trouble. But perhaps not. Still, he thought easily, he could handle Sarah.

He made no plans, uttered no definitions. He was not a seducer of innocence. Seduction was abhorrent to him. He called it by other names. Every love affair into which he entered had its special glamour, its exceptional romance; he loved, like a boy, like a mature man, and for the first time; and loved the more ardently because it would not last, because, in the nature of things, it could not endure. Knowing this, he said each time: This is the last time; this will not perish.

Therefore, he did not say to himself in words, "This girl attracts me. I shall possess her."

Any love affair was, with him, upon the knees of the gods. No one, he least of all, knew what tomorrow might bring. Sometimes, the quarry run down, the capture effected, he would wake to find a woman in his arms; would wake, grateful, astonished and superbly moved. Later, when it was over, he would ask himself how it had happened. "I did not will it. It was not my fault."

The anchoret is not more mentally chaste than the true Casanova. For to the true Casanova every woman is the first, every woman is the last, love is as sentimental as an old-fashioned valentine; every love is the goal and the end of the road; each victory brings amazement. These are the men who are forever seeking the impossible, forever demanding the static and the stable of something as variable as the seasons and the winds.

THINKS OF LYNN

Of such men was Dwight, one of that charming, tragic and misinterpreted company whose opprobrium is so much more than they deserve because they mean no harm; and so much less, also because they mean no harm. And whose day of reckoning is blacker than any rumor, because the other days have dawned so bright with promise. This is the company who, having grasped the shadow for the substance, cry out upon life as a cheater, and believe themselves cheated, never knowing that it was, always, the other way about.

And so David Dwight drew no mental pencil marks through Lynn Harding's name and his own, murmuring, "Friendship, hate, indifference, love, kiss, court, marry." Merely he went to bed thinking that he had spent a delightful evening; thinking that if his extravagances had been notable during the past year or so he was bound to win the Carson case when it came up on the calendar in the fall and thus retrieve his slightly dejected fortunes; thinking, too, that he had never felt better in his life and that tomorrow was another day.

Girls should always have gray eyes, inquiring, mischievous, tremendously trusting and eager and shining; they should always wear a sleek blackbird's cap of hair, with a dark arrow pointing the way upon a smooth white forehead. They should have a fugitive, elusive dimple, always in the left cheek, and a black beauty mark to tempt the beholder at the corner of a young, red mouth. They should be small and slenderly rounded, and they should always wear dusky pink, the color of afterglow in summer.

Such girls were always kind, of course; gentle but not docile; spirited but not shrewdish. Such girls should be protected and befriended.

He believed it.

So much so that a few days later he left his office early, shot downward in an express elevator and waited, impatient as a boy, at noontide just outside the doors of her office. And when she came out, brave in a spring suit as gray as her eyes, but a small scarlet hat for gayety, as bright as her lips, he said, feeling young and high-hearted:

"Well, how about lunch?"

She was glad to see him; said so. Said, also, with a small scowl of indecision, "I haven't much time. I have to be out of the office this afternoon. I've made an appointment in just an hour."

"We'll go downstairs to the Gavarin, then," he suggested.

She hesitated; nodded. Tom came by, seeing no one but herself, taking her arm in his firm grasp.

"Lunch, honey?"

She said, a little embarrassed, "I'm sorry, Tom. I didn't know you were going to be free."

Then he recognized David Dwight standing there beside her, so sure of himself, so infernally well dressed.

"That's all right." He spoke to Dwight. He said, "Good morning, sir," in accents which endowed Mr. Dwight with a long, gray beard, a limp, and a rheumy eye. Then he was off, saying over his shoulder, "See you tonight, Lynn."

Synopsis

Lynn Harding, young and pretty, is ambitious for a career in the Seacoast Bank and Trust Company. She loves Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the vice presidents, but will not marry him, feeling they both must make their careers first. Then Lynn meets David Dwight, a prominent lawyer, through Sarah Dennet, her chief at the bank. Twenty years ago he had been Sarah's fiance. When he married a woman of wealth and position, Sarah was broken-hearted, but she finally found contentment in her work. Dwight is attracted to Lynn and invites her and Sarah to his apartment for dinner. Lynn's roommate, Jennie Le Grande, a model, warns her that Dwight is dangerous.

Now Go On

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Little Joan Kennedy, 3065 Latonia avenue, a member of the South Hills Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who celebrated her seventh birthday Friday, was all excited Saturday afternoon, when she told all the boys and girls of this chapter about her coming trip to Philadelphia, where she plans to spend the summer with her grandmother.

Joan is going to make the long trip to Philadelphia all alone, and when asked Saturday if she wouldn't be afraid of getting lost, replied:

"I'm a big girl now, and mother and daddy are going to put me on the train and my grandmother will meet me when I get to Philadelphia. So I don't see any reason to be scared."

TELLS ABOUT BAND

Joe, who lives at 300 Beverly road, and is a student in the Mt. Lebanon Junior High School, will be in grade 8-B next year. When asked what prompted him to organize the band, he said:

"I feel that the boys and girls of this neighborhood conferred a great honor on me when they elected me grand jester of the South Hills Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club. I thought it would be nice if we had some kind of an organization made up from club members that would and could furnish something different in the way of entertainment for the other members. After the boys and girls elected me grand jester, I talked with Mr. Koch, the manager of the South Hills Theater, and the band is the result."

The members who attended the regular meeting Saturday at the Mt. Oliver Harris Theater were entertained by some of the youngsters who appeared last week at the Stanley Theater in the "Pittsburgh On Parade" revue. Those appearing at the Mt. Oliver Harris, were: Jack Jenkins, master of ceremonies; Jimmy Edwards, song; the Einloth sisters, song and dance; Baby Eleanor, who recently returned from making her motion picture debut in Hollywood; Shirley Mae Jackson, tap dance; June and Roland Koph, acrobatic dance; Betty Gray, song.

Utility Abuses

New York Commission Sets Example Which Should Be Followed in Pennsylvania.

The New York Public Service Commission intends to earn its wages. It has taken a strong stand against the abuse of holding companies in utilities. The refreshing vigor of such a move makes its action stand out in sharp contrast to the flabby policies of most other state regulatory bodies.

It has charged that in the Associated Gas and Electric System "the holding company idea has been utilized to siphon funds from operating utilities into holding companies or their subsidiaries and affiliates which are not subject to public regulation." The commission also went into detail in its examinaton of fees charged the operating companies by the related organizations. These fees aggregated nearly $8,000,000 in two years and the commission infers that these charges placed an excessive burden on consumers.

The New York Commission has given official confirmation of the long suspected fact that the utility organizations are using their mazes of holding companies to hide the true affairs of the actual operating organizations.

A map of the Associated Gas and Electric System shows that New York is not the only state in which this giant operates. Its power lines cover large areas of Pennsylvania. From Erie and Warren the system extends south through Johnstown and across the entire western end of the state. It also covers a large share of the northeastern portion of the state and has additional operations in the southeastern part of Pennsylvania.

This immediately raises the questions:

Is the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission going to follow the lead of New York state in investigating the organization's operations here? Is the Pennsylvania Commission going to make any attempt to see if other utility organizations are following practices similar to those found in Associated Gas and Electric?

We're Creating a Lake

Useless Swamp Being Transformed Into Flood-Control Reservoir That Will Be Beauty Spot.

Pennsylvania does not have many lakes, so one is being made. The primary purpose, of course, of this work, now being carried on in Crawford County, is not just to make a lake, but to turn Pymatuning Swamp, useless, into a flood-control reservoir that will also serve as a supply for the Shenango River and the Beaver, which it feeds, in times of low water. Thus it will have value both as a safety factor and industrial asset, besides being a beauty spot.

At present nearly 1,000 men are being employed on the huge project (the lake will have 70 miles of shore line) and that, in itself, is an economic condition that appears large in the present state of unusually great unemployment. Conservation is the watchword in the prosecution of the work. Wild animals, including deer, foxes and 'possums, are being captured and sent to state game preserves. Timber that is being cut will be sold by the state, which is doing the work by contract, under the direction of the Department of Forests and Waters.

This lake, which will hold about 1,000,000,000 cubic feet of water and be about the size of Lake Chautauqua, likely will be a much-frequented pleasure site in the coming years. As stated in the beginning, Pennsylvania has but few lakes—Conneaut Lake and Eaglesmere being the most prominent. So its value as a place of recreation likely will equal that of the utilitarian service it will afford.

Traffic Fatalities Cut

Big Decrease in Deaths in May Is Recorded in Comparison With Previous Year.

A most satisfactory report is that of the City Bureau of Traffic Planning, the high spot of which is a showing of a large decrease in fatal accidents in May, as compared to the same month last year, the swing in favor of the current year being 70 per cent. For the five-month period of 1932 the decrease from 1931 is 18.6 per cent. There were six fatalities in May and there have been 57 since the first of the year.

The reason possibly is that there are fewer cars in traffic. To the driver at rush hours there actually appears to be more than ever, but the fact that economy compels many to use their cars less often than they ordinarily would seems to indicate there are fewer cars in traffic. Economy may prompt drivers to be more careful, too—they just can't afford to have accidents.

If they felt that way all the time there would be very few accidents, comparatively, and that is just the attitude we should always assume. We can't afford to have accidents, especially fatal accidents. Life is the most valuable thing in the world and we cannot afford to either lose it or take it.

But, whatever the reason, there is cause for felicitating ourselves on the fact that we have cut down the death toll of the automobile accident. What has been done can always be repeated. Let's be repeaters.

Hail the South Side!

Record Set for Pitching Horseshoes, But Soho Could Come Back to Contest for Honor.

A South Side youth is said to have pitched horseshoes for 110 hours continuously to set a new record, topping the previous one of 109 hours, 5 minutes, credited to a Soho hurler of the footgear of a hoss. Hail, the good old South Side! For fear of reprisal, also hail good old Soho! Yet it ought to be all right to hail the South Side a slight bit more. At least until Soho comes back with a new record. Keep a few hails in reserve.

But, where are the West End and Woods Run and the Strip? Are they going to let Soho and the South Side get away with this? Also, where are Squirrel Hill, Fifth Avenue, Highland Park district, Ridge avenue, Sewickley, Mt. Lebanon and other swanky districts? Are they going to let the husky lads of the Soho and South Side neighborhoods triumph?

The Squirrel Hillites, etc., are the folks who go to Florida, and horheshoe pitching is a "society game" down there in the winter time. Of course, the white-collar boys may not have the leisure the mill-hands have at present, but it seems that something might be sacrificed in the interest of democracy.

'Never Touched Me!'

Just so long as there are tax-exempt securities in which the wealthy can invest their incomes, it is futile to attempt to raise national revenue by means of "soak-the-rich" taxation.

The rich escape the imposts, and the levies fall heaviest on those least able to bear the burden.

State and local governments are issuing wholly tax free securities at the rate of ONE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS YEARLY, and these securities are gobbled up by wealthy citizens bent upon avoiding payment of income taxes.

The Congress should set the example for the rest of the nation, pass the joint resolution of Senator Bingham (now before the Senate) amending the Constitution to bar tax-exempt securities, and send it on to the States for ratification.

If it came to a choice between going to the presidential chair and going to the death chair, almost any sane woman would cry, "Turn on the current! Bring on the lethal gas!" Even the dentist's chair would seem a pleasant alternative, a sweet relaxation, beside it.

The very thought of the campaign cartoons, alone, is enough to make any normal woman drop over and curl up!

Isn't It So?

Moral suasion is all right if it has the proper backing.

What is the use of running when we are not on the right road?

The man who tells you that he has nothing to say may be capable of saying a good deal were he so inclined.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 21.—Fanny Ward continues an astonishing figure in the endurance parade. Confessing to some 60-odd years, she is seen constantly where Broadway is in fullest flower, radiant and expressing an elan that befits her vaudeville billing as "The Eternal Flapper."

Even her hands—the inevitable giveaway for those who camouflage for years—have not the customary gnarl. Hers are those of a woman of 40. While her brilliance has the steady glow of the electric light, there is nothing feigned about her exuberance.

Any time, day or night, she is in a mood "to go places and do things." At parties she always remains for the finish. She smokes moderately and drinks in the same fashion. Save for a rather chirking voice, she might easily pass for 30. Nor does she give the suggestion of a "freak."

Miss Ward is a grandmother, and her daughter has entree into English society. Out of beauty salons in New York and Paris she has become comfortably fixed and in the winter of life seems interested solely in a good time. She is a "regular" at first nights and cafe openings.

Her constant companion is her husband, Jack Dean, who seems to have a Ponce de Leon recipe himself. Nearing 70, his sleek black hair is untouched by the snows of innumerable Decembers. His vivacity is, however, more restrained. He permits his blonde wife to enjoy the full spot.

A restaurant, called "The Brewery," demurely hidden near First avenue in the 50's, has bloomed into that florid success that comes with winning passing popularity of the lacquered and leisurely, always searching something new. Foaming mugs, which have no taste of a "needled" brew, are served from an old time bar. Decorations are strictly Germanic, waiters heavy-footed and Teutonic and a menu sprinkled with Bauernwurst, sauerbraten and pig's knuckle. A waltz-playing orchestra and a proprietor puffily paunched and nosed like Punchinello complete the picture.

Down on Long Island, the overlord of one of those vast estates had reached the retrenchment maneuver of dismissing his 15 servants. His wife and two daughters were allotted the household tasks. In two weeks they gave up in despair. In desperation he appealed to an employment agency, explaining he could only provide home and board. In two hours he had 15 servants again. And could have had 100.

Expensive dog shops have a sure-fire method of disposing of their dogs to genuine fanciers. At first they never discuss prices. Instead, they insist upon the selection being taken home for a few days trial. They know this will insure an attachment certain to result in a sale at their own figure.

In a night place the other evening a furious melee sent a bottle smashing against the head of an amateur prize fighter. When a bucket of water finally brought him around, he leaped to a crouching position and in hysteric falsetto screamed: "I'll fight anyone else in the house."

* * *

In the green meander of a loitering curve in Central Park at sundown last evening I rested for awhile on a bench with the dogs. All about was the furnace air pressure of a city's intense heat. Out of a clump of bushes there suddenly appeared a shy maiden—a maiden of perhaps 6—entirely naked, having wandered from a family camping for the night away from a nearby tenement. "Go away" she called with radiant sensitiveness. Even the dogs caught the contagion of embarrassment as we slunk away. And as one who can sit with brazen indifference at a fleshly exhibit on the stage I found myself blushing—faintly, of course, but a blush just the same.

And below the Plaza on the avenue a chauffeur was airing Clara Walsh's midget Sealyham, Skippy, who is for all the world like those stuffed dogs with shoe button eyes in toy store windows. All of a sudden, heat weary, he squatted in a pool of hydrant water and refused to budge. That's the Sealyham, the stubborn thus-and-thus!

For some reason, no one ever asks me to join those spontaneous organizations of quartets. Twice this week and again late tonight at Gene Crawley's I suffered this snub. Next time I am going to let go a few inches of rich baritone that will make them feel silly. And walk right out.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Would you like to "go back to the land?"

Do you think you'd enjoy a little haven of wilderness, with a garden patch, a few chickens, a couple of pigs and a cow?

That's what a lot of poor folks in New York State are going to have if Gov. Roosevelt's plan works. More than one person in 10 of the state's population is now being cared for by the public relief organizations, because of unemployment. State funds are giving out, but state lands are still plentiful, so the Governor thinks that the back-to-the-farm movement is the answer.

Sounds great, doesn't it?

Probably you wouldn't hesitate for a second to take one of those farms if you had a chance.

BUT I WONDER IF YOU'D REALLY LIKE IT AFTER YOU GOT THERE?

We're going to hear a lot of plans like that during the next 12 months; and thousands of people are actually going to start back to the land.

BUT HOW LONG WILL THEY STAY THERE?

AND WON'T MOST OF THEM END UP IN A WORSE MESS THAN THEY WERE WHEN THEY STARTED?

No, I'm not a gloom, and personally I'm strong for the wide open spaces. I've lived in them most of my life. I've made my living in them. I have a home in them now, and I'd just as soon "go wood-chuck" for the rest of my career. But that's because I really know the land.

AND BELIEVE ME, LAND NEEDS KNOWING.

It's mighty easy to paint rosey pictures about going-back-to-the soil; but DOING IT is quite another matter. And after a very considerable experience in seeing 'em come and go, it is my belief that nothing gets the goat of the average city American quicker or harder than God's big, beautiful outdoors.

A week-end in a trick tent, or even a couple of weeks' vacation with plenty of beach pajamas, iced drinks, crap games and dance records, can be endured with fortitude by almost anyone. But just let 'em face the wonderful wilderness without all those fancy trimmings, and watch the grouching begin.

For the truth is, we've gone city soft—we Americans. Our much vaunted American standard of living, with its millions of modern conveniences, has turned most of us into a bunch of soft-shelled crabs, if we have to face any real discomfort.

Mountain trails and desert mesas, untracked wilds and babbling brooks listen lively in broadcasts, but in real life we want our elevators, electric fans, gas stoves and hotel plumbing. And yell our heads off we can't have them!

As for solitude—that commonest commodity down on the dear old farm—show me the city dweller that can stand 24 hours of it without getting the jitters.

Nor does this apply merely to people who winter in Miami. It applies just as much, if not more so, to the girl in the five-and-ten and the family in the next apartment. Landscapes are beautiful in the rotogravure section: but for true comfort, give us light housekeeping rooms near a few snappy movies and a good delicatessen.

There's the truth about us virile Yanks, who get our sun tans in beauty parlors and break our broncos on merry-go-rounds. We've become, largely speaking, a bunch of sissies.

And, unless we toughen up before we start this back-to-the-soil movement, they'll have to bring a few million of us back in baby carriages.

That is neither a pleasant nor proud fact to contemplate, but it is what ails us, and we had better get wise to the fact. And if the fix we're now in makes us hep to ourselves, we will not have gone bust in vain.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Gift of Song

Just sometimes hope's rainbow is spanning
The bridge we have built for our dreams;
Just sometimes each bit of our planning
Works out in accord with our schemes;
Then how gladly we go
Through a world all aglow
Where the sunshine of happiness gleams!

Some seasons no wind is unkindly;
Every seed that we plant comes to bloom,
And the way we have trodden so blindly
Leads us up from the shadows and gloom;
Leads us into the light
Where we know life aright
And finds bliss in its wine-sweet perfume.

Just sometimes we give thanks at the ending
Of hours of sorrow and doubt,
And just sometimes we pause, comprehending
Our blessings, with hearts grown devout;
Then we taste of a joy
Without dregs or alloy
In the splendor that rings us about!

Text for Today

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.—Matthew, vii:21.

The Story in St. Paul's Churchyard

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Millions pass old St. Paul's Church on lower Broadway without observing the tall monumental shaft which marks the grave of Thomas A. Emmet, once, and for a long while, one of the leaders of the New York bar. Most who do read the name, without the long inscription, have no appreciation of the tragic story it tells. For this man was the brother of Robert Emmet, one of the martyrs of the Irish race.

Thomas A. Emmet was an older brother, with more practical ability perhaps, and with many gifts, though hardly so much the genius as his younger brother. He was also a patriot, and played his part with the United Irishmen and the rebellion of '98; and he was in prison at the time the younger brother made his ill-starred attempt to effect a successful revolution, and paid the penalty upon the scaffold. It was after the termination of his prison sentence that the older brother came to this country to make a distinguished career for himself. It is not generally known that had a plan he had in mind not been thwarted by the Federalist party in this country, Robert Emmet probably would have escaped martyrdom and have become a brilliant ornament of the United States.

Proposed His Plan While in Prison

It was while in prison that the older brother proposed his plan to bring a small colony of the rebellious Irish to America and settle, probably in Pennsylvania. The English wanted nothing more than to get rid of these troublemakers. The government in London considered the plan and was more than pleased. It was ready to act; but Rufus King, the American Minister in London, learned about it, and the Federalist leaders, including Hamilton, their chief, knew about it.

And the result was that King was instructed to inform the British government that America would much prefer that these rebellious Irishmen be kept at home. Thus the British government could not proceed with the arrangements; thus the older Emmet stayed in prison; and thus Robert Emmet entered upon his mad enterprise which did not have one chance in a million of succeeding.

The story is well known—how he was betrayed by the informers, how his own men failed him, and how, after a trial made immortal by his memorable speech, he was killed on the gallows.

But for the protest of Rufus King, at the instance of his party here, young Emmet would have accompanied his brother as a member of the colony and there would have been no execution.

Why the Federalists Opposed Emmet

The reason for the hostility of the Federalist party to the colonization plan is found in the fact that the Irish then in America were not aligned with them. They were really the shock troops of the Jeffersonians in many communities, and they were, with their genius for politics, among the most effective of the fighters. It was to get them, not the French Jacobins, that the alien and sedition laws of odorous memory were passed. Fresh from struggles for liberty and human rights in Ireland, they naturally moved to the side of the Jeffersonians, and the Federalists wanted no more like these.

Out of Tragedy Came a Romance

Out of the tragedy of Emmet came to light one of the most moving romances to be found in literature or history—his love for Sarah Curran, the daughter of the great Irish orator and lawyer, whose defences of political prisoners are included among the greatest orations in the English language. I have in my possession a letter from Robert G. Ingersoll, declaring Curran to have been the greatest orator produced by the British Isles. It is an astonishing thing that with such material in this story for a novel or a play there has been nothing of the sort worth mentioning—if, in the nature of a play, there has been anything at all.

Curran lived near Dublin at his home called The Priory, where he constantly entertained the choicest spirits of the time. He was the most brilliant conversationalist in England, or Ireland, one of those who scintillated at the dinner table of Lord Holland in London. The young men of promise sat at his feet, as at the feet of a master. Thus, when Robert Emmet, son of an old family, began making frequent appearances at The Priory no one suspected that the magnet which drew him was not the genius of the father, but the charm and beauty of the daughter.

A Reason for the Resentment of Curran

The love affair had progressed far with many exchanges of love letters, when the Emmet rising occurred. He was taken—because instead of staying in his hiding place he slipped close to Dublin in the hope of seeing Sarah Curran occasionally. On his person were found some letters from her. This was the first intimation Curran had, and he was outraged.

There was a reason for his resentment. As the most feared orator and lawyer in Dublin, the British government had sought ways to compromise him, possibly to accuse him, and it now had the way. His position as the advocate of the patriots in the courts was weakened. Treason had been brought close to his own home. He consequently refused to defend Emmet at his trial; and Sarah Curran, who loved her father, was momentarily driven to insanity. Emmet's letter to Sarah's brother, seeking to exonerate her, is one of the most pathetic and beautiful in the language.

Killed by Grief Over Emmet

She lived, however—a tragic figure; and finally married an admirer after frankly telling him that her heart was buried in the grave with Emmet. Soon she died. Washington Irving in a sketch told the story in part in "The Broken Heart," and Tom Moore wrote one of his most moving poems about her:

And lovers are around her, sighing;
But coldly she turns from their gaze, and weeps,
For her heart in his grave is lying."

A powerful drama could be written around the story of these two bright and ardent young spirits.

Curran had had another reason for his fury with his daughter. His wife, an attractive woman, had become infatuated with a minister of the Gospel, and had fled with him. That had made him particularly careful to guard her daughter; and the love affair had been carried on under his roof, in his presence, and without his knowledge. His life was a sad one; which may be the reason that he was one of the greatest wits of his day. He smiled to keep back the tears.

Thus, there are stories in stones—like that in the churchyard of St. Paul's—if one only knows them.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

"It is a pleasure to see So-and-So in action," said an observer, "because he presents an exemplification of earnestness and concentrated energy."

How do you act on your job whether it be regular or extra duties?

Are you wholly absorbed in it?

Are you so interested that it drives all else from your mind?

It is surprising to you that he does not tire of the strenuous efforts he makes unceasingly as he concentrates on his affairs hour after hour, day after day.

But that is the reason he is boss.

It is not an easy task to be boss, to line up work for others to do and at the same time work out the many problems which come to the head man in any organization.

The boss's job is not so easy as you think.

You might have had it if you had worked as hard as he has.
